CLEARING WEATHER MAY PERMIT THIRD TRIP TO EUROPE

BIG PLANE WILL BE READY FOR EARLY GETAWAY FRIDAY, BYRD STATES

By Associated Press.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., June 23.—The tri-motored monoplane "America" will be taken from its hangar tonight and down to the top of the runway preparatory to a hop off for France at 4 o'clock tomorrow morning.

"There is a general clearing up in the weather that has delayed the flight so far," Commander Richard E. Byrd told newspaper men today, "and while there is no certainty just now of a take-off in the morning, we are going to get all ready and if we can't leave tomorrow we will probably be able to go the next day. The America will be taken to the runway tonight in preparation for a hop at 4 in the morning if the weather man will let us go."

Commander Byrd's optimism combined with a report from the Weather Bureau in New York that fog between here and Newfoundland was clearing up and the information that Porter Adams, president of the National Aeronautical Association, was on his way from Washington to seal barographs, all led to a general feeling at the flying field that the long delay was almost at an end.

"The low pressure area in the Atlantic is improving," Commander Byrd said, "and if it continues clearing up we will be ready to fly in the morning."

One Fog Bank is Only Impediment

By Associated Press.

New York, June 23.—A fog bank between New York and Newfoundland was described this afternoon as "the only remaining impediment" to the trans-Atlantic flight of the monoplane America.

THREE MEMBERS OF CREW OF TRAWLER REPORTED MISSING

COLLISION WITH FREIGHTER IN FOG SENDS FISHING BOAT TO BOTTOM

By Associated Press.

Truro, Mass., June 23.—Three lives were lost when the Clyde line freight steamer Ozark, Jacksonville for Boston, collided with the Beam Trawler Surge, owned by the Bay State Fishing Company of Boston, five miles off Cape Cod early today. All were members of the crew of the Surge, which sank 15 minutes after the collision. The Ozark with a hole in its hull, was run into shallow water and beached.

By Associated Press.

Truro, Mass., June 23.—Three members of the crew of the Surge, a beam trawler operated by the Bay State Fishing Compay of Boston were missing and believed drowned after she had been sunk in collision with the Clyde line steamer Ozark, five miles off this section of Cape Cod early today. The other 19 were rescued by the Ozark, which was damaged and was beached 1500 yards off the Pamet River Coast Guard Station.

Two of the rescued fishermen had severe cuts about the head.

The collision occurred during a heavy fog. A large hole was smashed in the side of the Ozark and she was reported to have about 25 feet of water in her forward hold.

The Ozark, a freighter, in command of Captain Anderson, was bound from Jacksonville for Boston.

The Pamet river coast guardsmen went to the beach as soon as they saw the steamer racing toward shore and after she had come to rest on the sandy bottom they sent a boat out to her.

TRIPLE SLAYING IS BARE OF DETAILS AS ONLY WITNESS FLEES

TWO POLICE FIND HIGHWAYMAN IN STOLEN CAR AND SHOOT IT OUT

By Associated Press.

Chicago, June 23.—Darkness mantled a triple slaying early today in a North Side alley, with no witnesses left to tell what happened except a mystery girl, who fled in horror before the roar of the last revolver shot had died away.

Two policemen shot it out with an automobile thief, and the three were killed.

The policemen dead are Sergeant Thomas Kehoe, 52, and Officer James Farley, 32. The man they shot was Dan Leathers. The bodies of the policemen were found on a lawn in front of 4939 North Rockwall street. Kehoe was dead with a bullet over the temple and another in his back. Farley had been shot in the stomach and chest but was living and conscious when police reserves arrived.

"There was—a woman—in the—car—with him," Farley gasped. "She ran." Farley said he was sure he had wounded the man.

"He was close, and I'm sure I got him," he said

Police returned to the place and found the robber's body nearby. He had been shot in the heart and abdomen, the end of his trigger finger had been shot away, probably by the bullet that entered his abdomen.

The officers started their last quest of a criminal shortly after midnight when a report was made that a masked man had held up Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Cooper and taken their automobile and $5.

They came upon the stolen car and the robber near the place where their bodies were found. What happened thereafter is known only to the girl who Farley said was in the automobile with the man.

HUNT FOR ESCAPED MEN BEING LED BY SEVEN PACKS DOGS

TOTAL OF SOME FORTY CONVICTS AT LARGE THROUGH TWO ESCAPES

By Associated Press.

Huntsville, Texas, June 23.—With 20 of the 35 convicts who escaped Tuesdany night from the Ferguson prison farm at Midway still at liberty, posses and dogs who put in all of yesterday in recapturing fifteen of them, were refreshed and ready to renew the man-hunt today. All of those captured were overtaken within a short distance of the prison from which they broke away by sawing a hole through the flooring.

Seven packs of dogs were used in the hunt and the same number probably will be used today. Heavy rains have made the going through the bottoms difficult, and it is not believed that the fugitives will have made much progress during the night.

About 40 convicts are still at large in this and a prison break of a few days ago in which 24 Mexicans escaped.

EIGHTEEN ARRESTS IN CONNECTION WITH RAIDS THREE TOWNS

A large quantity of intoxicants and other illegal merchandise was confiscated and is being held as evidence by the officers. Beer was served with meals at one of the Gunter hotels. The arrests and raids were made on warrants based on information secured during the past three weeks by agents of the officers working in secret.

PRINCE OF WALES THIRTY-THREE YEARS OLD AND UNMARRIED

By Associated Press.

London, June 23.—Government buildings and West End Club flew flags today in honor of the thirty-third birthday of the Prince of Wales. Apart from this time honored custom of so recognizing the birthdays of the monarch and heir to the throne, there was no public recognition of the event.

The Prince had a luncheon engagement with the Royal family for receiving gifts.

NO GROUNDS FOR NAVAL LIMITATIONS AGREEMENT FOUND

AMERICA'S CHIEF DELEGATE, HOWEVER, BELIEVES RESULTS WILL FOLLOW

By Associated Press.

Geneva, June 23.—Lord Robert Cecil, British delegate to the tripartitate naval conference and Hugh S. Gibson, chief of the American delegation today held a private meeting to discuss the proposals of their respective countries for further naval limitations.

No advance towad an eventual agreement was made at the conference, the most reliable information being that both confined themselves to an explanation and defense of their respective proposals.

Mr. Gibson, who was accompanied by Allen W. Dulles, judicial expert for the American delegation, on emerging from the meeting told newspaper men, however, that there was no reason for being less optimistic about the outcome of the conference.

All Anxious for Agreement.

He said that the peoples of the United States, Great Britain and Japan were all anxious to find an agreement and were convinced that only patience and good will among the delegates were needed finally to work out a common basis for an accord. "It is natural to encounter discouragement in the solution of individual problems," he said, "but without this existing there would have been no need to call the conference."

Questioned by an English correspondent as to why Washington permitted conversation of the conference and proclamation of divergences without having negotiated with London and Tokyo confidentially in advance in an endeavor to work out some sort of an agreement beforehand, Mr. Gibson answered that such a proceedure would have provoked a general outcry because it would indicate that the United States was not proceeding openly for the discussion of the various problems involved.

Still Hopeful of Agreement.

Mr. Gibson emhpasized that he and Viscount Cecil had examined the British and American proposals in an attempt to understand their mutual positions and added that nothing had occurred thus far which would justify less hopefulness in achieving a final agreement.

"Some difficulties lay in the fact that our three navies have different missions and different problems," he said, "so we must find a common denominator for everybody and solutions acceptable to everybody."

DE AUTREMONT TWINS PLEAD GUILTY AND GET LIFE SENTENCE

FOUND NECESSARY AT LAST MOMENT TO PLACE CASE BEFORE JURY

By Associated Press.

Medford, Oregon, June 23.—Ray and Roy DeAutremont, today entered a plea of guilty and made a confession of the Siskiyou train hold up in which four men were killed in 1923. In court they reversed their plea of not guilty which has been entered earlier this week.

The DeAutremont twins were sentenced to life imprisonment. When their plea of guilty was made it was discovered that the Judge would be compelled under the law to inflict the death penalty. Thereupon a jury was hastily impaneled, the confession was read, the jury retired and immediately found a verdict of guilty, recommending life imprisonment.

STILL SEARCHING FOR AIR OFFICER WHO FELL INTO SEA

By Associated Press.

San Diego, Calif., June 23.—Belief that Lieutenant Commander William S. Hactor, operations officer on the naval air station here, may have survived the sinking of a naval torpedo plane off LuGuna Beach, Tuesday night, kept navy airmen and marines searching for him in the waters near here today.

An inquiry in the cause of the accident was ordered after Lieutenant Thomas Fisher, pilot of the plane assumed responsibility for it. Lieutenant Fisher was found stumbling along the beach after he had made a swim to shore after the plane went down.

Whether Chief Machinists Mate Robbins, the third member of the plane's crew, is dead or alive was not known but efforts were made to identify a body which was washed ashore at Newport Beach, north of here, which was said to generally resemble the petty officer.

NOT A BAR TO EDUCATION

Decreeing that there shall be no aristocracy of dress and that a bare foot boy in overalls is still entitled to an education in the American schools, San Francisco school authorities reversed the action of a teacher by permitting the return to school by a boy whose lowly state afforded him only the poor garb of Huckleberry Finn.

Just a few weeks ago the courts in another state ruled that the public schools cannot exclude a girl whose parents chose to dress her in knickers.

In virtually every state in recent years attempts have been made to force a standardized dress upon the girl student and, in some cases upon the boys.

All these cases are manifestations of a growing tendency to regulate the dress of the school child, but the objection to the bare feet and overalls and the demand for uniform dress were inspired by diametrically opposite motives. A uniform and inexpensive costume for school girls is urged so the girl of little means need not be conscious of her inferior clothes, while the teacher who took offense at bare feet and overalls in the school room acted in defense o fthe conventional dress of modern times.

The San Francisco affair was purely a matter of poor judgment. One may not approve of overalls and bare feet in the school room, but to deny an education to a boy thus dressed, or undressed, is unthinkable. Had the teacher thought twice she would have found more suitable clothing for the boy. It does not speak well for welfare agencies when they permit a boy to suffer the humiliation the California lad must have experienced.

TO THE BLACK HILLS.

The presidential caravan has arrived at the summer white house in the Black Hills. Through the pleasant fields of Ohio and Indiana reached the great places which lie the corn belt and the needless fields of wheat of the Northwest. It will be weeks before it returns. By that time the grain will be harvested and threshed and the turn of the farmer's year will be at hand.

In that time it will be possible for Mr. Coolidge to learn much about the West and the Northwest and for the Northwest and West to learn much about Mr. Coolidge. While the president is studying its problems, it will be well for the East with its industries to study them also. If, out of this summer sojourn in the Black Hills, there can somehow come a better understanding between the West and the East of what, after all, is a common problem, so much the better for the country.

Should the Black Hills vacation lead to this it may claim a place in political, industrial and social history.

KILLED ON HIGHWAYS

The annual toll of life by automobiles on the highways is tremendous, nor is the death record confined to human beings. Thousands of domestic animals, livestock, dogs and fowls are run down and killed. To this record of destruction must also be added an immense number of wild birds and animals, killed either accidentally or deliberately by cars.

A member of the American Game Protective Association writing from Pennsylvania says: "If you were to travel over our highways it would surprise you greatly to see the number of rabbits killed each day by careless motorists." The crushed and bloody or festering carcasses of rabbits are a familiar sight along the highways in many parts of the country. In some sections hundreds of ruffed grouse are killed in the same way each season, as these birds are run down while dusting or feeding on the roads.

Reports are not uncommon of deer, and even moose, being struck by cars in the nighttime and either killed outright or so badly hurt they have to be shot. Low flying birds such as red headed woodpeckers, bluebirds, meadow larks and others are often hit in flight and killed. Mourning doves, which are accustomed to feed along the roads, are often victims, as well as the smaller birds that resort to the roads to feed or dust.

Much of this destruction of life is unavoidable, but more of it is done heedlessly, and often even deliberately. Some men seem to become imbued with callous disregard for life when at the automobile wheel, and take a fiendish delight in running down any unfortunate animal or bird that may happen to get in their path. One frequently hears such persons relate with glee how they chase a rabbit or deer, blinded by motor headlights, until he "got it."

Such recklessness and indiscriminate destruction of life can largely be avoided by care and it would seem that the wild creatures are entitled to consideration to the extent that their lives might be spared when possible.

A BLOW TO SUBSIDY BOYS

"We don't want subsidy," said Charles Linbergh, speaking of the development of American air lines. "We feel that if we had a subsidy the size of planes and the distance covered would be regulated by that subsidy. What we need is air ports in every town and city."

The more one sees and hears of Col. Lindbergh, the bigger he stacks. He has been idolized by three nations, and so far as anyone has been able to learn from the newspaper men, always critical he has neither done nor said one foolish thing. "We don't want subsidy." There spoke self reliant young America. Older men have pointed out what the governments of Europe are doing for their air industries; have hinted that if the United States government would do as much, American aviation would be vastly aided.

But Col. Lindbergh has no use for subsidies. A subsidy implies a controlling government hand, a board of control that says what shall and what shall not be done. It is a check on experiment, a brake on pioneering. It means playing safe. It is foreign to the spirit of adventure which we have come to look upon as typically American. There is nothing in Col. Lindbergh's nature, nor in that of unnumbered thousands of Americans of the same breed, consistent with subsidies.

Air ports are a different matter. They cannot be established and maintained successfully without community action. And they are necessary, indispensable, to the conveyance of passengers and freight by air from town to town. Neither regular nor occasional air service is possible without them. Therefore every city that wants to be on the air map must have one or more landing fields, property equipped with hangers and shops and freight sheds, and conveniences for passengers. They are in no sense a subsidy to air traffic; they are civic necessities which every town must have to participate in twentieth century projects. Even though it might not be good business to expend a large amount of money at the present on an air port for Corsicana, the ground should at least be acquired and held in readiness for improvement when the time does arrive. Many planes would stop in this city if a convenient landing field was available. Adequate acreage could now be purchased at a reasonable price. A convenient air port will be one of the principal assets of the cities of the future.

It is happy news that Col Lindbergh is not going to capitalize his great reputation by "stunt" flying, but hopes to devote his great abilities and prestige to the development of commercial aviation. He has the whole country behind him in that, as he has it with him and for him because of what he has done—and because he is the sort of young man he is.

A diplomatist is a critic who attends an amateur recital and confines his review to a charming little essay on Beethoven and the circumstances under which he wrote the Moonlight Sonata.

If they keep on whittling down the dimensions of our paper money, pretty soon they'll make both ends meet.

Attractive homes and well kept lawns are among Corsicana's greatest assets.

MANY STUDENTS ARE ENROLLED CITIZENS MILITARY TRAINING

Special to the Sun.

Fort Sam Houston, Texas, June 22.—With 1525 students enrolled for the Citizens Military Training Camp at Fort Sam Houston, all previous records of attendance were smashed Wednesday, June 15. The quota for the camp was exceeded by over 500 students. Due to this unprecedented response of two aditional companies and two Civilian Military Training Camp, the corps of Texas to this year's additional names were made necessary and were organized.

Although five hundred more students reported than were expected they were housed, fed and equipped without a hitch by the parent regiment, the 9th U. S. Infantry, commanded by Colonel E. G. Peyton. Additional barracks were thrown open, equipment drawn, personnel furnished in so smooth a manner that the students had no inkling of the surprise their large number caused the camp authorities.

Physical examinations this year showed the students to be considerably above those who have attended previous camps. Of the more than 1500 students examined Wednesday and Thursday, only one candidate was rejected, an Eagle Pass boy, authorities finding he had a weak heart.

The fifteen hundred men of this year's Civilian Military Training Camp, now in operation at Fort Sam Houston are being trained and administered by the Ninth Infantry, commanded by Colonel E. G. Peyton, by Battery "D," 12th Field Artillery and detachments from the 2nd. Engineers and 2nd Signal Company. Colonel Peyton is also Camp Commander and Lietutenant Colonel Charles J. Nelson is the Executive Officer.

Division of Men

The students are organized into five rifle companies and one machine gun company of two hundred and twenty men each; one battery of Field Artillery of 100 men and detachments of Signal and Engineer troops.

In addition to these, there is a Howitzer platoon, who are taught to handle the toylike but incredibly efficient 37 millimeter gun and the 3 inch Trench Mortars. Except for the acting non-commissioned officers, the rifle and machine gun companies are composed of basic students, while the Engineers, Signal Corps, Howitzer and Artillery are the advanced, Red, White and Blue.

The Red, White and Blue students have had one, two or three years in previous camp and will be used as instructors. The status of Blue and White students of the CMTC will be anologous to that of cadet officers and non-commissioned officers at the United States Military Academy at West Point. They are so assigned as to furnish the proper number for duty as acting officers and non-commissioned officers of the student platoons and are given advanced instruction.

Thursday afternoon, the entire camp was massed in the hollow square on the parade ground, where they were administered the oath of allegiance by Major Robert J. Halpin, 9th Infantry. After receiving the oath the students were addressed by Colonel E. G. Peyton, Camp Commander on the training schedule. The band of the 9th Infantry played martial airs and the famous colors of the "Fighting Ninth" were displayed to the eager students. All came to "Hand Salue" while the Star Spangled Banner was played at Retreat when the ceremony was dismissed.

Drill Started Friday

The actual drill of the students started Friday morning after the former ceremony of administering the oath of office on Thursday at 5:30 p. m. The scope of training at the Civilian Military Camps is not large but an attempt is made to make it thorough and of lasting benefit. Subjects which will be stressed at this year's camp are rifle marksmanship, physical training and athletics, scouting and patrolling, small tactical problems, close and extended order drill and ceremonies.

Great interest in paid to calisthenics and athletics. 1st Lieut. Simon D. Foss, 9th Infantry is tre Recreation and Athletic Officer and has arranged a program which will satisfy even the enthusiasm for athletics of the eager young men. Baseball, volley ball, track, swimming, tennis and golf are some of the most attractive features of the camp.

The feeding of these hundreds of eager, hungry students has been placed in charge of Lieut. Carley L. Marshall, 9th Infantry. To acommodate these students, eight large messes are maintained, each one under the expert control of a qualified regular army mess sergeant and with regular army cooks. In this camp, there is no such thing as waiting in line to be served, for the mess halls are equipped with tables and benches and waiters are available. Students do not do kitchen police, except one time, and then for instruction only. One officer from each company must inspect each meal by actually eating with the students.

With an allowance of 70 cents per day man a wide variety of food is being prepared.

The following is the menu for Thursday:

Supper—Beef hash, brown potatoes, sliced pickles, vegetable salad, cup cakes, bread, jelly, iced tea.

Breakfast—Iced cantaloupe, corn flakes, French toast, American fried potatoes, milk, butter, coffee, syrup, sugar.

Dinner—Fried fish, tomato gravy, browned potatoes, creamed corn, tomato salad, peach cobbler, vanilla sauce, bread, ice water.

GRAIN FARMER AT ABSOLUTE MERCY OF EXCHANGE--GOUGH

By Associated Press.

Chicago, June 21.—L. Gough of Amarillo, Texas, president of the Texas Wheat Grower's Association, speaking today at the American Institute of Co-Operation assailed the Chicago Board of Trade as having the grain farmer absolutely at its mercy.

"It is the heighth of folly to talk about farm relief and not elliminate the cause," he said.

"The Chicago Board of Trade is the dominant exchange and has absolute power to fix the price of every bushel of wheat. Five men on the board determine what the farmer is going to get for his grain. Under the law they are nameless and are known by numbers only. And I'll admit they ought to have numbers.

"The Chicago Board of Trade has the sole power to give the farmer a profit or take it away from him. According to reports in the government records the Chicago Board of Trade creates a market which is not based on the law of supply and demand for actual grain and the wide fluctuations in price have neither economic nor moral justification.

"Farming will never be profitable until there is a change of the system and the farmer can control the flow and price and distribution of his products the same as other industries."

Abolition of the Chicago Board of Trade would be a means to that end, he said, and the step could be taken by Co-Operation.

Equal opportunity for all grain owners is provide in the public warehousing bill passed by the Illinois Legislature on June 16 which is the result of forty years of intermittent effort to give the Board of Trade the right to engage in warehousing of public grain, John R. Mauff told the Institute.

He formerly was vice president of the board.

"The Board of Trade in acting as trustee," he said, "will have no sordid or financial interest in the grain but wil honestly and with experts in charge do the public warehousing of public grain and collect for that service the lawful rate of storage provided for in the Illinois constitution of 1870."

BELIEVED WRECKED PLANE BELONGED TO MISSING FRENCHMEN

By Associated Press.

Paris, June 21.—Experts of the Farman Airplane Company expressed the opinion today, that the wrecked plane found near the mouth of the Amazon river was the one in which the missing French airmen Captain Saint-Roman and M. Mouneyres, set out from South Africa for a flight across the Southern Atlantic to South America.

They held this opinion even though the markings on wrecked plane, as told in dispatches from South America, do not definitely establish its identity. The markings given, it was said, are those of the pneumatic tires on the landing gear, corresponding with numbers on the type of tires furnished only for airplanes of the model which Saint-Roman flew.

INDIGESTION GONE

Tennessean Was Worried Considerably Until, on Advice of An Acquaintance, He Began To Use Black-Draught.

Sewanee, Tenn.—"For several years," says Mr. J. L. Russell, of this place, "I suffered continuously with spells of indigestion. Everything I ate disagreed with me, and I was in a bad way.

"Nothing did me any good until I found Black-Draught. One day a man in a store where we traded told me to try Black-Draught. He said he knew of it relieving indigestion, so I decided to give it a trial.

"In my case it seemed to go right to the very root of my trouble. It straightened me out, and ever since that time, over thirty years ago, I have used Black-Draught.

"When I have a spell of indigestion coming on, I begin on Black-Draught. I take several small doses, in a regular course, and I find it will usually have me well in less than no time. Now I never suffer—I take Black-Draught.

"I also found it fine to break up a bad cold. In the winter time, I always keep a box handy, so when I sneeze, or feel chilly down my spine, I take a few doses of Black-Draught, and that wards off the cold."

TENTATIVE POLICY SUBMITTED MONDAY BY THREE POWERS

By Associated Press.

Geneva, Switzerland, June 21.—The executive committee of the tri-partite naval conference, under the presidency of Hugh S. Gibson of the United States, decided today to convoke a meeting of the technical experts of Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

The experts were instructed, first, to exchange views and reach an agreement on the existing status of the three navies, including building programs; and, second, to begin sutdy of the three sets of proposals placed before the conference yesterday with a view to clarification of their real purport.

By Associated Press.

Geneva, June 21.—With a basic, if tentative, policy outlined by those participating nations, the three-power conference was ready today to embark upon concrete discussions of further naval limitations.

Succinctly the position of the Big Three may be stated as follows:

United States—Extension of the 5-5-3 ratio to all warships, with definite tonnage limits for cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

Great Britain—Further limitation of battleships, reduction in size and armament of both capital ships and cruisers and extension of the 5-5-3 ration to 10,000 ton cruisers, but no mention of application to auxiliaries.

Japan—A naval holiday in the basis of the status quo, and a ban on battleship construction.

In each case the plans submitted embodying the above naval policies comprised much complicated technical detail, thus providing a maximum basis for discussion and, possibly, for compromise as the conference gets down to work.

Although the proposals are widely divergent, there was hope that the delegations would be able to combine them into an harmonious whole and thus complete the work started by the Washington naval limitation conference in 1922. That the task will not be an easy one was freely admitted, yet no one has said it is impossible of fulfillment.

United States is Pleased With Japan

By Associated Press.

Washington, June 21.—The Japanese naval limitation reports was favorably received in official circles in Washington today as displaying not only a conciliatory spirit but as showing satisfaction with her navy's present strength and a willingness to remain in a position of comparative inferiority in all classes of auxiliary ships to Great Britain and the United States.

The British proposal, however, was regarded unsatisfactory by the officials here in so far as they affect questions decided at the Washington conference and which the administration feels should not be discussed at the present conference because of the absence of two of the signatories of the 1922 treaties.

Japan's reply was taken to indicate that she admits she needs no larger navy than she now has. The Japanese navy at present is on a ratio of 5 to 3 with England in the matter of modern cruisers and the same ratio holds between Japan and the United States for submarines, while for destroyers between the two latter countries, the ratio is about five to one-half.

CAPTAIN, OFFICERS AND CREW OF ALLEGED RUM SHIP ARE HELD

By Associated Press.

New York, June 21.—Thomas E. Kirk, captain of the alleged rum ship Turner, was held in bail of $7,500 today on charges of conspiracy to import liquor into the country.

Three officers who described themselves as John Dussett, Arthur Handley and John P. Westenhosfer, were held in $5,000 bail each, and eleven members of the crew were held in $1,000 each.

The Turner, boarded off quarantine by coast guards and customs men yesterday, had a cargo of contraband liquor estimated to be worth nearly $1,000,000.

By Associated Press.

Galveston, Texas, June 21.—The steamship Turner, formerly known as the Trader, was stopped in Bolivar Roads here in the early part of May by customs officials. She was laden with scrap iron for the Far East via Hampton Roads. At that time it was indicated that customs officials were investigating a widespread rum-running conspiracy centering about the Trader. No charges were filed, however, and the ship was allowed to proceed.

HUGH DEAUTREMONT FACES LIFE FOR HIS PART IN ROBBERY

By Associated Press.

Jacksonville, Ore., June 22.—A life sentence stared Hugh De Autremont in the face today as the result of his conviction of murder in connection with the Siskiyou tunnel hold up and dynamiting near the California-Oregon line in October, 1923, in which four men were killed.

The jury made short work of a long case yesterday when it returned a verdict after one hour and 24 minutes of deliberation. Young De Autremont smiled as he heard the verdict, and announced it himself to fellow prisoners, including his twin brothers, Ray and Roy, on being returned to jail.

No date has yet been set for the trial of Ray and Roy. Sentence on Hugh willl be pronounced Friday.

KANSAS MUTINOUS CONVICTS STILL HOLDING OUT AFTER MANY HOURS WITHOUT FOOD

by Associated Press.

Lansing, Kans., June 23. A new state penitentiary endurance record against the "hunger cure" was established today by 328 convicts who barracaded themselves and captive guards in the prison coal mine at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, and remained defiant after more than 38 hours of self-imprisonment.

In three previous strikes in which prisoners shut themselves in the mine in unsuccessful efforts to obtain special privileges, 38 hours was the longest time the leaders could hold the men below the surface. On all occasions the guards, held in the damp dungeon in the 720 foot level, were unharmed.

A telephone call from the mine to Deputy Warden B. H. Hudspeth, in charge, asking that wives of the guards be permitted to talk to their husbands, was received last night and was interpreted as the first indication that mutineers were weakening. The request was refused, however, and the unidentified spokesman for the prisoners informed the warden they desired no concessions.

All remained quiet above ground following a near riot last night in which a guard was stabbed and a prisoner believed to have been wounded when more than 300 prisoners in B cell house overpowered their guards and attempted a break with the reported intention of burning the prison twine factory. Hudspeth quelled the uprising by firing his pistol into the cell house and ordering out extra guards.

In line with the policy to refuse concessions to the strikers, authorities remained firm in their refusal to approve a cigarette issue, which caused a demonstration ending in the mutiny. Hudspeth announced the authorities were undecided as to final action on the convict ultimatum—"No cigarettes, no coal."

LINDBERGH GOING THROUGH MAIL AND CONSIDERING HIS FINANCIAL OFFERS TUESDAY

by Associated Press.

St. Louis, June 21.—After a day spent mostly at his ease, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh today planned to brouse through stacks of mail received since his epochal trans-Atlantic flight, and also give consideration to several attractive offers, now awaiting his decision.

More than 22 sacks, containing approximately 50,000 letters, most of which arrived by air mail, have been received, and the air hero has indicated that he and a staff of helpers will spend considerable time going over their contents and making necessary replies. Most of the letters opened so far ask for a photograph of the flier, personally autographed.

Colonel Lindbergh still remains silent as to his plans for the future. It is understood however, that he is giving some consideration to returning to New York and Washington next week to attend several business conferences. Whether or not he will fly East in the Spirit of St. Louis, if he decides to make the trip, is unknown. Some of the St. Louis backers of the flight are of the opinion that Colonel Lindbergh will turn over the plane to the Smithsonian Institute to be preserved with other great historic relics.

One of the many things Colonel Lindbergh expects to do within the next day or two is to make arrangements for the placing in the Missouri Historical Society rooms for safe keeping and exhibition the medals conferred upon him in Europe and the United States, in recognition of his valorous flight.

Colonel Lindbergh has made a partial inventory of his gifts and probably will decide today on which of them he intends to turn over to the Historical Society.

Contributions to the fund for the three-day reception for the flyer, which ended Sunday aggregate $29,935.30, according to W. Frank Carter, chairman of the finance committee.

Out of the funds raised $300 went for the gold hand carved box that was the gift of the city to the aviator, $2,000 for medals to commemorate the New York-to-Paris flight, and three other gold medals for Lindbergh, President Coolidge and the flyer's mother. Two motor car dealers also presented the flying Colonel with two high priced machines.

Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, mother of the flyer, left for her home in Detroit late yesterday in a private car attached to a Pennsylvania train.

"HUNGER CURE" TREATMENT CONTINUED FOR MUTINOUS KANSAS CONVICTS WEDNESDAY

Associated Press.

Beaumont, Texas, June 22.—Warden W. H. MacKey, of the Kansas state penitentiary, today wired deputies at Lansing to handle the prisoners mutiny "with an iron hand." The warden declared that the uprising was brought about by prisoners being denied cigarettes, which have been banned on account of the fire danger. The Kansas warden is here to return an escaped prisoner, arrested by local police.

Associated Press.

Lansing, Kas., June 22.—State penitentiary authorities today ordered the "hunger cure." treatment continued for the 328 convicts who barricaded themselves in the prison coal mine shortly before noon yesterday as a protest against removal of a cigarette issue.

While officials regret that the guards held in the mine by the prisoners would also suffer from hunger, they scouted fears of relatives that the guards would be injured or molested in any way.

A search of B cell house where the prisoners started a riot last night was made this morning while the men were at breakfast. No weapons of any any sort were found. Discovery of several sharpened files in possession of leaders of the riot caused Deputy Warden R. H. Hudspeth to investigate the possibility of plans for further demonstrations.

Five more convicts identified as leaders of the riot, were ordered into solitary confinement on a bread and water diet along with nine others scheduled to this punishment last night.

As the mutineers neared the end of their first 24 hours of self-imprisonment in the mine, Hudspeth gave no indication that overtures of any kind would be made to them.

"They'll come out w hen they are hungry enough," he told guards.

J. E. Thomas, stabbed during the rioting today identified Jack Dawson, serving a one to 4 years sentence from Kansas City, Kans., for burglary, and Richard Terry, sentenced in Waubansee county to 5 to 10 years for robbery, as his assailants.

Terry, whose real name is shown on prison records to be Ira Smith, Topeka, was one of the leaders in the mutiny at the prison mine last July.

Dawson's real name is Jack Schottek, Chicago, prison records show, and he has served terms in the Colorado penitentiary, the boy's reformatory at Iona, California, and an Illinois boys' reformatory.

COTTON MARKET COMMITTEE TAKES TEXAS BOOSTERS IN CHARGE THURSDAY

By Associated Press.

Chicago, June 23.—Samuel P. Arnot, chairman of the cotton committee of the Chicago Board of Trade, today told a group of prominent Texans accompanying Governor Dan Moody on a good will tour of the North, East and South, that the Board desired to aid in the marketing of Texas crops and in strengthening the ties between Chicago and the Southwest.

Tom H. Etheridge, Jr., of San Antonio, responding for the Texans told of the wide range of Texas crops and of the appreciation of Texas for the Chicago Board of Trade cotton market.

The Texans found the cotton market here of especial interest. They were received in the president's room by John A. Bunnell, head of the Board of Trade, the chairman and members of the cotton committee and various prominent board members. They were taken to the cotton pit where its trade methods were pointed out by William R. Meadows, cotton registrar. Many of the visitors are identified with cotton, either as planters or dealers, and appeared to be greatly interested in the explanation of the manner in which the Chicago market handles Texas cotton.

After a round of entertainment Wednesday and Wednesday night the Texans were left largely to their own devices Thursday. They will go to Cleveland, Ohio, tonight.

At noon Wednesday members of former Chicago delegations to Texas attended a luncheon to greet old friends and business associates from Texas cities represented.

Dawes at Luncheon.

Among the honor guests at the luncheon were Charles G. Dawes, Vice President of the United States, and United States Senator Robinson of Arkansas. Speakers included Gov. Dan Moody of Texas, President Splawn of the University of Texas, and Cullen F. Thomas, Dallas. In honor of the Texas party Wednesday was designated as Texas day at the ball park, where the visitors witnessed the game between the Chicago White Sox and the St. Louis Browns.

Wednesday night the Chicago Society of ex-Texans honored visiting Texans with a dinner. The all-Texas party will remain in Chicago until 11 o'clock Thursday night and will go to Cleveland. John D. Middleton of Greenville has arranged a meeting of Texas Rotarians for Thursday noon as guests of officers of Rotary International at the Sherman House.

Moody Makes Hit Lindbergh Banquet

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—At the banquet here Tuesday night Gov. Moody of Texas made a big hit when he praised Col. Lindbergh and St. Louis for having performed the latest great achievement in world history, and when he had concluded what a number of Texans declared was a remarkable address he was applauded almost as much as Lindbergh was later. Moody was introduced first and preceded two St. Louis men whom Lindbergh followed.

Charles Dysart, president of the Industrial Club, presided, and presented the Governor as the youngest chief executive of any State in the Union.

Mr. Moody likened the backing St. Louis gave Lindbergh to that of Ferdinand and Isabella, who had financed Columbus. "You men have financed another discoverer," he said (the man who performed the latest great achievement in world history.) "Lindbergh didn't realize what a tremendous feat he was setting out upon. He carried letters if introduction (applause) and when he landed in Paris he found the name of Lindbergh on the lips of people in every nation.

"It is most appropriate that his plane should have been named the Spirit of St. Louis because St. Louis is to be a gateway of airplane travel in the not distant future. We of Texas will be traveling east via airplane, by way of St. Louis, and the East will be calling to us over the same route." (Applause.) He said Lindbergh was loved for his heroism and bravery, but above all for his modesty, and was cheered again. Texas, he told Lindbergh and the St. Louisians, was the first State to hang the Colonel's picture in its capital. It went up at 9 a. m. on the Monday following his arrival in Paris, and there were more cheers.

Vice President's Nephew Sues.

Chicago, June 23.—William Mills Dawes, a nephew of Vice President Dawes today filed a suit for divorce from Nancy Keenan Dawes, of Parkersburg, W. Va., who yesterday started a similar suit. It charges desertion.

CLOUDBURSTS HAVE SENT RIVER OUT OF BANKS 100 MILES

BELIEVED LITTLE DAMAGE WILL RESULT IN VALLEY FROM PRESENT FLOOD

By Associated Press.

Brownsville, Texas, June 23.—With flood waters pouring down from the San Juan and Salado rivers in Mexico, caused by rains of almost cloudburst proportions in sections west of Rio Grande City, there was enough water in the Rio Grande at 7 o'clock this morning at Rio City to flood parts of the lowlands of the lower valley section, with no accurate check on additional flood waters available, according to the local United States Weather Bureau office checkup this morning.

Levees which have been constructed along both sides of the Rio Grande are expected to hold the water in its banks except in some of the lowland sections, where the damage will be small unless the flood proves of unusual proportions.

All highways in the lower Rio Grande valley are open, the highway from Edinburg to Falfurrias being suitable for traffic a short time after the three inch rain Wednesday and all railway lines are in operation, as rains in the section from Rio Grande City south were comparatively light.

The Weather Bureau here reported the water in sight enough to cause the largest flood since June, 1925, when the river stayed bank full for almost a month, breaking out at some low points.

Advices from the office of County Engineer Pat Devine of Hidalgo county this morning were that the river has not reached flood stage at Mission, and has not started out of its banks.

The floodway systems of the valley, although not completed, will handle a flood such as the present one promises to be, with little damage to the Valley it was said. There are no flood gates now, but the water will run into the floodway if the river rises high enough.

Flood warnings were sent out from the Brownsville Weather Bureau station here yesterday and today giving the stages of the river at Rio Grande City, and warning irrigation plants and others that the river will probably be bank full in the lower valley by late today.

REFUSED ADMISSION TO DAIL CHAMBER UPON REFUSAL OF OATH

By Associated Press.

Dublin, Ireland, June 23.—William T. Cosgrove was re-elected president of the Free State executive council by the new Dail Eireann at its first session today. The session was held without the participation of Eamon De Valera and the other deputies elected on the Fianna Fail ticket, all of whom refused to take the oath of allegiance to the King.

By Associated Press.

Dublin, Ireland, June 23.—Eamon De Valera and the other deputies elected on the Fianna Fail ticket refused to take the oath of allegiance to the King at the opening of the new Dail Eireann today, and were refused admission to the chamber. The Dail began its sitting without them.

Mr. De Valera and his deputies marched to Leinster House, where the Dail sits, at 2:30 p. m. They were admitted to the house on showing their invitations and were conducted to one of the committee rooms. The clerk and deputy clerk of the Dail entered the room to hear the Fianna Fail members take the oath of allegiance, but the latter refused. Thereupon they were refused admission to the Dail chamber.

CHAMBERLIN SAYS BREWERS PRINTED FALSE TESTIMONIALS

By Associated Press.

Vienna, June 23.—Clarence D. Chamberlin, American trans-Atlantic flier, refused a stein of cold beer when he stepped from his plane last night on returning to Vienna from a flying visit to Budapest.

His refusal, it was explained, was due to the fact that several Munich and Vienna breweries have been printing false testimonials about their products.

By Associated Press.

Vienna, June 23.—Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine, American trans-Atlantic aviators, left Vienna for Prague, the Czecho-Slovakian capital at 4:38 o'clock this afternoon.

OKLAHOMAN TAKES LAW INTO HIS OWN HANDS AT DUNCAN

SHOT DEFENDANT IN CASE BEFORE COURT TO DEATH IN COURT ROOM

By Associated Press.

Duncan, Okla., June 23.—A murder charge was filed today against Arch Gilbreath, who late yesterday killed B. F. Cox as the latter's trial on a charge of assaulting Gilbreath's daughter started in District Court.

Gilbreath, a 43 year old farmer, soon afterward was released on $10,000 bond, furnished by ten of his friends.

The farmer waived preliminary hearing in county court, where he was arraigned, and County Judge John W. Scott bound him over for trial in State District Court, denying him bond.

Going immediately to District Court, Gilbreath was granted bond and his trial set for October 3. The amount of bond was approved by J. H. Long, county attorney, and he was freed.

J. T. Ault and J. M. Jackson, two of the ten friends who signed Gilbreaht's bond, were on the panel of jurors that was being examined when Gilbreath shot Cox in the back three times, almost instantly killing him. Ault and Jackson, however, had not yet been examined. Ten talesmen had been examined when the shooting took place, and all had been excused.

Charles Schick, the eleventh venireman, was being questioned when District Judge E. L. Richardson gave spectators an opportunity to leave the room and Gilbreath, an inconspicuous figure, apparently was filling out with the crowd when he suddenly produced a revolver and killed Cox.

Court officers said they considered the case against Cox closed, and the court reporter did not plan to transcribe the notes he had taken. Cox, who was 32 years old, was accused of holding up three automobile parties near Duncan last April, assaulting two women, attempting an assault on a third and robbing their men escorts. He was wanted in several other towns on similar charges.

BERGDOLL GETS IN LIMELIGHT AGAIN; WOULD FLY OVER

By Associated Press.

Berlin, June 23.—Grover C. Bergdoll, notorious draft dodger, anxious to return to America and inspired by the recent trans-Atlantic flights, is determined to fly to the United States if he can obtain an American plane capable of making the trip.

Telegraphing the Berlin Bureau of the Associated Press today from Hoexter, Westphalie, where he stopped on an automobile tour, Bergdoll wrote:

"Will the constructor of the Spirit of St. Louis or the Columbia deliver a plane with a Wright motor in short order?

"I am anxious to fly from Europe to the American interior until the gasoline is exhausted."

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Creach of Houston were in Corsicana Thursday.

THE EVOLUTION OF A CHRISTIAN

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson
June 26, 1927.
Review Lesson.

WM. SOUTHERN, JR.

Neither saints nor criminals are made over night.

It takes a long time to make a saint out of the very best material to be found on this earth.

I believe that some people are born Christians. These do not sow wild oats and have no crops of that kind to reap. Yet it takes many years fashioning at the hands of the Master to make a real saint out of even one of these.

Think even what a job the Master has when he attempts to make a saint out of an ordinary half baked, or hard boiled individual, like you and me. The job seems impossible to us and when we see it done in some cases we call it a miracle. And it is a miracle.

This was the kind of a miracle we read about when we follow the life of Simon Peter. Peter was a hard citizen. He made his living under hard circumstances, associated with a rough-neck crowd, fought his way in the markets where he brought his fish for sale. Peter was rough and ready, impulsive and fickle, well meaning, quick in wrath and just as quick to be sorry for what he had done. His fists were hard and ready and oaths came easily from his lips.

Yet the Lord took Peter and made him the Rock. Today his name stands enshrined in the greatest Cathedral in the world, the Patron Saint of the largest body in organized Christianity.

It is quite interesting to study how this miracle was accomplished. The story is told in the four gospels and in the Acts and continued in the letters which Peter has left us.

Peter was a Jew, but I doubt if he worked at it much. His was a nature which abhorred hypocrisy and resented authority which clashed with his ideas of liberty. I think Peter must have been in full sympathy with the great fight made by the Maccabee brothers and then when he saw the Roman soldiers, then masters of Palestine, march by, he cursed them. First he became interested in John the Baptist and went to hear him preach. He liked John who was himself a rough and ready and earnest man. Peter sized John up as one who was honest in what he said.

Then one day Peter's brother told him that the Messiah had come. Peter dropped everything and had a long talk with Jesus. He was not partricularly attracted at first, but the wizardy of His voice, the calmness of His eye and the Love which looked out upon Peter, drew that young man irresistibly. So it happened that when Jesus invited Peter to join Him Peter dropped everything he had in hand and followed. Peter became a Christian.

Then began the evolution of a Christian. I am not using this word to arouse controversy but in its meaning. A lot of people see red whenever the word evolution is used, but it is a perfectly good word and does not mean that man was once a monkey or that the human race jumped across a chasm that has never been crossed from one species of life to another.

Jesus began by the slow process of evolution to make a saint out of a sinner. He had a hard time of it, we are given little illustrations all through the story of the struggle. Peter had his moments of exaltation and his moments of despair. One day he was in the clouds on the mount of transfiguration, the next in the dust of denial. Early in his career he started to walk across the waves of the sea in full faith, lost his faith when he felt the wind and saw the waves and sank with a cry for help.

Peter was still a private in the rear ranks when Jesus died. He became a leader only after he had plumbed the depths of despair at his own act of denial. He knew that Jesus had forgiven him when his Master looked at him so sorrowfully as He was led down the stone stairway, wearing the stripes and bleeding.

In Rome there is a stairway of twenty-eight steps said to have been brought from Jerusalem centuries ago and to be the very steps down which Jesus walked when he looked his forgiveness to the man whom it transformed.

Peter's education and evolution had progressed rapidly when he ran to the tomb and saw that the body of his Lord was no longer there. It dawned on him as it did on John that Jesus had risen from the dead and then they began to understand for the first time the meaning of many things He had said to them in His lifetime.

Then came the interview by the lake about a little camp fire and Jesus left them to carry on the work which He had begun. It was a great responsibility. They had no written instructions. Jesus had left no books. He left only his disciples and one of them was Peter. They did not fail Him.

Look how Peter, the denier to save his own skin, stood boldly before the rulers and proclaimed to their faces that they were murderers. Look at him approaching the Gate Beautiful at the hour of prayer healing, in Christ's name, the lame man. Look at him in prison when his chains fell from him and the doors opened.

In reviewing the life and the evolution of Peter, I think the greatest victory he ever won was when he became convinced that Gentiles had souls and that Christianity was for the despised Samarian and the impossible Gentile, as well as for the Jew.

Right there let me stick a pin. We of this day have not evoluted far enough toward sainthood to do this thing. We are not even willing to believe that Christianity is for certain brands of Christians we may not like. We are willing to call names and to shut the doors on men and women who do not believe as we do.

The evolution of sinners into saints is taking place all about us. The story of Peter should answer the man who does not join the church "because he is not good enough." Peter was not good enough. He was a very poor member and very fickle. Yet God made of Peter a Christian so faithful and so fine that we enshrine him as a saint.

The story of Peter ought to be an inspiration to all men and women who want to do right and to serve righteousness yet who feel unworthy and know that the devi is working on them.

Peter was a very human, everyday man. If God could make a Christian out of Peter, I have hope for myself.—The Republic Syndicate.

In Memory of Mary Elibeth Bennett

Monday afternoon at 1:30 the death angels visited the hospital and took from Mr and Mrs. O. B. Bennet, their daughter, Mary Elizabeth, known to her friends as Jake.

She was visiting her sister, Mrs. Chas Stokes at the time of her operation. After Mary Elizabeth's operation she lived two weeks. But God saw best to take her home.

The funeral services were held at the Methodist church with Rev. Van P. Morrison in charge. Surviving are her parents, two sisters, and other relatives. She was laid to rest in the Pattison cemetery at Emhouse.

God needed one more angel to fill a vacant place,
So He saw best to take her away and lay her to rest.
Dear sisters, so live,
So you can meet her there;
Where Jesus and Jake live,
In a home so bright and fair.

Oh, Dear mother do not weep,
For she is asleep,
With little angels at her feet.

Dear father don't be sad,
For little Jake will be glad;
When she shall meet you there
With a little smile so bright and fair.

Cousins, Uncles and Aunts,
She has gone before;
So you can meet her
On that bright eternal shore.

Mr. Huling and other friends,
Her love was once for you all.
In Heaven now she stands;
She was taken from us all.
One who loved her best of all friends.

MINNIE JEWELL RAY.

FUGITIVES HEMMED IN BY HIGH WATERS OF TRINITY RIVER

CAPTURE OF ENTIRE LOT IN RIVER BOTTOM NOW BELIEVED INEVITABLE

By Associated Press.

Huntsville, Texas, June 22.—In the second big prison escape from Texas prison farms within ten days, thirty-five white convicts at the Ferguson farm about 25 miles north of here gained their liberty early today.

Five were captured quickly and posses headed by local citizens after daylight were trailing the others through heavy, gumbo mud which made progress difficult. Prison officials also said that the heavy rains which had swollen streams would make it more difficult for the escaped men to cross streams. The county is heavily wooded, flat and slow to drain after heavy rains.

The other escape was June 13, when 24 Mexican convicts broke out of the Blue Ridge prison farm in Fort Bend county. Some of them remain at large.

The prisoners who got away from the Ferguson farm today sawed a hole in the floor of their wooden barracks building. The barracks have bars placed on the inside but once through those only wooden planks confine the prisoners. A night guard came upon the prisoners as they were dropping one by one through the hole, when thirty-five had passed through and prevented others in the building from getting away. He aroused the guards and the chase started immediately.

Records of Men.

Four of the escaped men were convicted for murder. One of the convicts, the prison records here showed, was involved in a desperate escape about a year ago when Will Rader, a guard was shot and killed. He is Alvin Ireland, originally sentenced for bank robbery. In that delivery two men rode up to the guard in front of the barracks soon after midnight, shot and killed him, took his keys, called Ireland, and Harve Ennis, and two other men out, relocked the door and escaped. Ireland and Ennis were recaptured. The other two are at large.

The escape today was accomplished quietly and without violence. So far as State prison officials here know the convicts were unarmed.

Communication is Cut.

Telephone communication between Madisonville and the farm was interrupted either by wires being cut or storm conditions. News of the escape came when a messenger from the prison farm reached Madisonville and telephoned to the State prison here.

Three of those reported recaptured were: Jack Allen, Titus county, charged with theft and serving two years; John Reid, Young county, robbery with firearms, 38 years; Alex Williams, Wise county, burglary, four years.

Men and Sentences.

The thirty-two who were at large at last reports to the State prison, and their sentences were:

Theodore T. Whitehead, Bexar and Val Verde, murder, life.

LeRoy Wright, Collin, forgery; six years.

Richard Wison, Bexar, theft; four years.

By Associated Press.

Houston, Texas, June 22.—Hemmed in by the swollen waters of the Trinity river, thirty-five long-term convicts who escaped from their bunk house on the Ferguson state farm near Madisonville, Texas, at midnight Tuesday were reported surrounded this morning in the river bottoms by practically the entire male population of Madison county, together with guards from two prison farms.

Sawing a hole in the side of the building in which they were housed, the fleeing men made their way to the lone highway that runs near the farm. Headed in a Northeasterly direction, a quickly gathered force of guards impeded their progress at the lone ferry on the Trinity in that section. Turning south along the river bank, closely pursued by men and dogs, the convicts, bunched together, impeded by thick mud that is practically impassable to anything but a caterpillar tractor, haven't a chance to escape capture, prison officials reported.

So far as can be learned, no one was injured in the break. Early reports said that automobiles had been commandeered and horses stolen, were denied emphatically by the officers.

Names of the escaped men cannot be ascertained early this morning due to the cutting of wires to the Ferguson farm, authorities at prison headquarters at Huntsville explained, adding that the only available method of communication was by horseback and that slow due to muddy roads. The mud was described as being "knee deep."

The soil in the Madisonville country is described as "black waxy" due to its color and its adhesive properties. It is asserted that when wet a man's foot will double, quadruple, octople, in size and so on with each step. Prison officials declared that the soil is wet at this time.

Three Men Reported Have Been Captured

By Associated Press.

Huntsville, Texas, June 22.—Three of thirty-five convicts who escaped from the Ferguson state prison farm at Madisonville during the night were recaptured early today, it was said at the state prison here this morning. The convicts were being trailed by dogs, the prison authorities reported. They said they anticipated little difficulty in recapturing the remainder who were believed to be in the vicinity of the heavily wooded Trinity river bottoms where recent heavy rains it was believed, would slow down their progress.

The report of the prison break to the authorities at the penitentiary here said that 153 men were housed in the wooden building. The guard who discovered their attempt to get away came upon the men as they were leaving through a hole which prison officials understood they had sawed in the floor.

The amazed guard came upon the men as they were leaving one by one and immediately covered the remainder with his weapon. They docilely submitted, according to this report. Other guards were aroused and five packs of dogs were placed on the trail of the men who were by this time making for the nearby woods. In accordance with custom, citizens turned out to assist in the search for the absentees and about forty of them, the prison authorities said, took up the trail.

At the prison here it was said that this is the first major prison escape accomplished at the farm.

Men Make Escape In Quiet Manner

By Associated Press.

Madisonville, Texas, June 22.—Thirty-five white convicts at the Ferguson State prison farm, 17 miles from here, sawed their way out of their sleeping quarters in a wooden barracks building during the night and escaped.

According to a messenger from the prison farm who came here to telephone the news to the State prison at Huntsville, they apparently had cut the wires into Madisonville.

The men were unarmed, he reported and added that the prison delivery was so quietly accomplished that it was not known until a guard in making his rounds discovered it.

FLAMES CONSUMED HOME FASHIONABLE DISTRICT OF BOSTON

By Associated Press.

Boston, June 22.—Four deaths resulted from a fire which destroyed the four-story brick and stone residence of William L. Shearer, Jr., vice president of the Paine Furniture Company, on Bay State Road in the Black Bay district early today. The dead:

JANET SHEARER, 19, daughter of Mr. Shearer.

BETTIE HOWSE, 16, daughter of Henry Howse of Boston.

ALICE SCOTT, 32, housemaid.

HELEN M'LAUGHLIN, cook.

Mrs. Annie Dickson, a governess, was rescued by firemen while clinging to the coping of an adjoining house.

The two girls and the cook were burned to death. Alice Scott was killed when she jumped from a fourth story window to the pavement.

The fire started in the basement from an electric iron which had been left on a shelf.

It was apparent that the fire had spread so rapidly that the women and girls had no chance of escape.

Mr. Shearer had gone aboard his yacht Paprika last night for a cruise and Miss Howse, a friend, had come to spend the night with Miss Shearer.

PREPARING CEMENT MAGNOLIA'S TRINITY SAND TEST AT RICE

Work of running the casing on the Magnolia McPherson was reported completed Tuesday afternoon, and the crew was preparing to cement late in the afternoon. Three to four days will be allowed for the cement to set, and then the plug will be drilled. Visitors to the well reported some oil on the slush pit when the casing was going down.

The Wild Rose Oil Company's Little No. 2 was down about 1675 feet Tuesday and the test being drilled by Thomas J. Jones and associates of Dallas, southwest of the Wild Rose test, was reported down about 1375 feet. No showing has been found in either test; both tests are expected to go to the Woodbine test.

Several Corsicana men are interested in a test that is being drilled about seven miles northwest of Belton. This well is down about 300 feet. It will be shallow test, of about 1500 feet. A well was drilled on this tract by the Standard Oil Company many years ago, and some oil was found.

NEGRO SENTENCED DEATH ASSAULTING MISSISSIPPI WOMAN

NEWSPAPER REPORTERS AND GENERAL PUBLIC EXCLUDED FROM COURT ROOM

By Associated Press.

Jackson, Miss., June 21.—Walter Burley, negro slayer of two women, was sentenced to hang on July 22 at the conclusion of his trial here today.

The negro, tried under the protection of National Guardsmen with both the general public and newspapermen excluded from the court room, was arraigned on the charge of criminally assaulting Miss Martha Rees. The jury after brief deliberation found him guilty as charged.

Burley also had been indicted for the murder of Mrs. O. S. Rees and Miss Martha Rees. He will not be brought to trial on either of these counts, County Attorney Hugh A. Gillespie indicated.

Ten witnesses testified during the trial, including C. S. Rees, husband and brother of the two slain women; Dr. W. W. Smithson, who conducted a post-mortem examination of Miss Rees; negro servants at the Rees home, and persons who had seen Burley in the neighborhood of the home on the morning of the crime.

After the testimony had been taken, Judge Potter admitted members of the press into the court room in time to get the charge to the jury and their decision.

The jury was out one minute and thirty seconds.

Burley was surrounded by National Guardsmen and taken back to his cell.

It was said that he would be "moved to an unannounced destination within the next two hours."

There was no disorder.

Newspaper Men Excluded.

By Associated Press.

Jackson, Miss., June 21.—All newspaper men were ordered from the Hinds county court room this morning by Judge W. H. Potter just before the case of Walter Burley, negro, confessed slayer of two white women, was called.

Burley entered a plea of guilty, but the court refused to accept it and a jury was speedily chosen. O. S. Rees, husband and brother of the two slain women, was the first witness to take the stand.

HINTS FOR FARM AND HOME

Furnished by the DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Dehorning cattle with saw or clippers had best be done in the cool weather of spring or fall. With calves a few days old the caustic-potash method is employed. This may be done at any season of the year.

The cowpea is especially valuable for feed. It will grow on all types of arable soil, requiring little attention and producing excellent forage. In addition, it is of great value as a green manure crop, to increase the humus and nitrogen content of the soil upon which it is grown.

In the South cowpea hay could be substituted to frequent advantage for much of the hay now purchased in the North and West. The greater use of this crop for hay and pasturage increases the production of livestock, an essential factor in securing maximum returns in any system of agriculture.

When hay caps are not used, one rain may wet the top of the field stacks to a depth of several inches, causing the hay to lose its natural green color and turn dark. Even a small amount of off-colored hay showing in the bale may reduce its selling price unreasonably. Direct sunlight causes alfalfa hay to bleach and become lighter in color if caps are not used. Caps made from heavy material, such as canvas, will last longer under similar conditions that light-weight caps.

Crimson clover will grow on poorer soil than most clovers and is not particularly dependent upon lime. Therefore, it has been widely used for restoring the productivity of run-down soils. A more important function is to maintain crop yields on soils already moderately rich.

Crimson clover is most important on the Atlantic Coastal Plain, from central New Jersey south to Charleston, S. C., and in the northern half of the Cotton Belt east of the Mississippi river. The area includes the northern halves of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi and the southern half of Tennessee.

Yokes of various kinds to prevent cows breaking through fences are poor substitutes for good fences and plenty of feed.

Proper ventilation of poultry houses is of primary importance. Hens will do well in a cold house provided it is well ventilated. Dryness is necessary. The building should be tight to keep out the rain, but the moisture from chickens within the house must be carried off by ventilation.

TEXAS PARTY IN CHICAGO FOR TWO DAYS' GOSPEL WORK

GOVERNOR MOODY SPREADING GOOD WILL FOR STATES AS OFFICIAL SPOKESMAN

By Associated Press.

Chicago, June 22.—Bent on showing the country that Texans do not wear 10-gallon hats or carry a pair of six-shooters as a rule, Governor Dan Moody and a delegation of 125 other Texans arrived here on a special train today for a "good will" visit of two days.

The delegation spent the forenoon touring the city and later were luncheon guests of the Chicago Association of Commerce, the official host to the party.

They were to see the White Sox-St. Louis baseball game this afternoon and tomorrow will be turned loose to see the city as they see fit.

Governor Moody said the trip was purely a good will tour, to show the country that Texans are not different from their fellow citizens in other states and to spread the gospel of Texas industries. He declined to discuss any political questions and beyond saying in response to a question, that the trip has no connection with anything political, merely grinned when interviewers pressed him for his views.

The delegation came to Chicago from St. Louis and Kansas City. It includes several mayors, judges, lawyers, business men, publishers and educators. Among the latter are Dr. W. M. W. Splawn, president of the University of Texas, and Dr. S. P. Brooks, president of Baylor University, Waco. A. W. Papert, manager of the Texas Daily Press League also is in the party.

Lindbergh Invited To Visit Texas

By Associated Press.

St. Louis, June 22.—Before leaving here last night for Chicago, members of the "All Texas Special" party had two opportunities to meet Colonel Charles Lindbergh and the famous aviator received a personal invitation from Governor Dan Moody to visit Texas.

Governor Moody and Colonel Lindbergh met first at a hotel luncheon at noon given for the Texas party. Lindbergh was at the hotel as an individual. Governor Moody presented to the aviator a silk Texas Flag similar to the one given to Governor Baker of Missouri at Kansas City Monday, and then invited Lindbergh to visit the Lone Star state.

The second meeting was in the evening when nine members of the Texas group were invited to a dinner given for Lindbergh by the St. Louis Industrial Club.

Lindbergh and Texans Are Guests of Honor

St. Louis, Mo., June 22.—Two young fellows whose names are being prominently mentioned by their fellow-Americans all over the country met here Tuesday night for the second time and exchanged grips as a party of fellow-diners cheered them. They were Gov. Dan Moody of Texas and Col. Charles Lindbergh of St. Louis.

They had previously met at noon when each was a guest of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Statler. The Governor headed the "All-Texas Special" good will tour party in whose honor the daylight function was given. Lindbergh was "on his own."

On the part of Texas, Gov. Moody presented the Colonel with a handsome silk Texas flag like that given to Gov. Sam Baker of Missouri at Kansas City Monday night and invited him to visit Texas.

Texans Attend Dinner.

At night the dinner was given for Lindbergh by the St. Louis Industrial Club and Gov. Moody, with nine other members of the Texas party, were included as honor guests. In addition to the Governor those attending included Lowry Martin, Corsicana, general chairman; Cato Sells, J. L. Greer of Denison, chairman transportation committee; Peter Molyneauv, Fort Worth; Cullen F. Thomas of Dallas, Dr. S. P. Brooks, Waco; Clarence Ousley of Fort Worth; R. M. Kelly, Longview, president East Texas Chamber of Commerce, and Douglas Hawley, the tour press representative.

GREAT GASSER IS RESULT OF DRILLING IN EASTLAND AREA

Eastland, Texas, June 23.—C. M. Roots No. 1 Thorpe in the Gordon-Ramsower pool, eight miles northwest of Eastland, has been completed as a 15,750,000 cubic foot wet gasser at a depth of 3,560 feet. It also is spraying some oil. An attempt was made to drill the well deeper, but this idea was abandoned because of the strong gas pressure.

L. A. Baltzell and Ben L. Sears of Richland were here Tuesday on business

C. A. Sweeton, R. E. Seagler and G. K. Lindsey of Houston were visitors in the city Tuesday.

W. E. Thompson of Terrell spent Tuesday in the city.

Rex L. Goodwin of Hillsboro was a Corsicana visitor Tuesday.

CHURCH OF CHRIST CONGREGATION HONOR RETIRING MINISTER

A program and social hour was held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the basement of the Church of Christ, honoring the Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Sewell. Rev. Mr. Sewell resigned as pastor of the church on account of ill health and leaves soon for San Antonio where he will be pastor of the Grove Avenue Church of Christ.

The program was under the direction of H. R. Harrison who explained in the beginning that the program was to be different from any they had had before. "It is a happy, yet sad occasion. We are going to show, as much as possible our love and appreciation for our departing pastor and his wife by presenting this program," he stated.

Rev. Hugh Miller pronounced the invocation. The Baby Class of the church then sang a "Welcome" song for Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Sewell. A series of readings were next given by some of the young people of the church. The first reading was given by Miss Eva Louise Houston, entitled "The Old Apple Woman." Miss Wynona Stewart then read "A Kid With a Cold." "A Sad Story" was the next reading, given by Miss Margie Rutherford. A humorous reading, entitled "Castor Oil" was then read by Miss May Fountain. The last of the series of readings was "Miss Dorothy Entertains the Minister," read by Miss Velma Henderson.

Quartette Sings.

The male quartette, composed of Lexie Layton, Robert Layton, Roy Layton and Lawrence Nolan, entertained the audience by singing a Gospel song that had a wealth of meaning in it.

A series of short talks, made by different members of the congregation representing all the phases of the church work, were then given, Dr. T. A. Miller representing the Elders, was the first one to speak. He stated that there was much that could be said on such an occasion as this. "They came to make Corsicana their home and we hoped that they would stay, but this could not be. We are sorry that nothing is permanent in this world; we all had great expectations that you would remain with us, but conditions came up that made it necessary for you to leave us. We feel sure that you enjoy the confidence and respect of all here and the love of all men."

Sowell Talks for Bible School.

Al Sowell, representing the Bible School, stated that there are so many things to be said on an occasion like this. "In the two years that they were with us, they endeared themselves to all. Brother Sewell came here with a wide vision for the church. This was brought out in his sermons, especially those dealing with the 'New Testament Church.' From the first they had great influence on the Bible study and when they leave their counsel and advice will be greatly missed. No one could hear our pastor's sermons without being influenced by them and endeavor to live up to the standards set forth by them. We will still consider him as home folks and go to him in time of trouble."

Miss Ruth Jackson, representing the Bible class taught by Mrs. Sewell, stated that they were deeply indebted to Mrs. Sewell for her aid and guidance she had given them. "You gave us an example of a sincere and true Christian character. You showed us the truth of the Bible and showed us that it is a book of today as well as years ago. You gave us an example of love, devotion, sacrifice and service and in the future we will try to live up to the standard that you have set for us. We wish for you all the success and happiness in the future and may you be happy in your new home."

Mrs. C. L. Matthews, representing the Ladies' Bible Class, expressed the sorrow and regret that the congregation felt in the departure of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Sewell. "We appreciate everything that you have done for us; we are sorry that the move has to be made. We all wish for you success and joy in your new home."

Speaks for While Church.

Dr. Trim Houston, representing the church at large, stated that he knew Rev. Mr. Sewell when he was here years ago, and immediately became a leader among the young people of the church. We all feel very sorry that you have to leave us and in appreciation of your work among us, I take great pleasure in presenting you with this token of our love and regard." Assisted by Patsy Ann Jeffers and Charles Henry Harrison, he then presented to the Rev. and Mrs. Sewell a loving cup. "This cup is to remind you of us," he stated, "but remember only our good qualities."

Rev. Jesse P. Sewell, in responding to the talks made by members of the church, stated: "We had a club here years ago named the 'Fun and Friendship Club.' We had lots of fun and it also proved to be a friendship club, too. Wherever I find a boy that was a member of this club I find the spirit of friendship there. The old spirit of association and sentiment built up by young people is invaluable in later years. Corsicana has always appealed to me. I came to Corsicana when I came to Texas.

Wanted to Come to Corsicana

"I don't know whether or not there was a little bit of selfishness on my part when I came to Corsicana. I was tired out, worked out and naturally thinking about home. I was in the right mood to accept when the call came to me made by this church. I wanted to come and enjoy the friendship once more of this church. It has been a disappointment to me because I could not do what I wanted to do. I do not know how the Lord works things; He might have made me sick to send me where He wanted me. 'I am going to hope the Lord has work for me to do where I go. There is no people that I love more than you. I love the congregation and the church and I regret very much that I have to go, for I regard Corsicana as my home."

Mrs. Sewell said: "I have enjoyed my work with you and I shall miss the beautiful church home that you have here. I thank you all for your kindness to me, while I was here and for the wonderful gift you have presented us with."

Refreshments were then served, after which a social hour was enjoyed.

Rev. Mr. Sewell came to Corsicana two years ago from Abilene where for twelve years he had been president of Abilene Christian College. It was under his administration that the college grew from a small, struggling institution to a fully accredited college. He is also an evangelist of some note, holding meetings in nearly every State in the Union, and his powers as an orator are recognized. Ill health was the reason for the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Sewell resigning from the local church. He goes to San Antonio where he will be pastor of the Grove Avenue Church of Christ.

In Loving Remembrance of Our Dear Mother

On April 24, 1927, God's death angel came down in our midst and wafted away our dear mother, Mrs. Rebecka Frances Hardin. She had been confined to her bed for five months with that dreadful disease, cancer.

It was so hard to give her up but God saw it best to call her home out of her suffering. She leaves a husband, two sons, six daughters, one grandson, one granddaughter and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn her death.

By her request she was laid to rest in the Methodist cemetery near Pursley.

Funeral services were held at the grave at 3 o'clock Monday evening, April 25. March 11 she passed over her fifty-second birthday. She was 52 years, one month thirteen days old. She had been a member of the Christian church since 1923 and had done her best to live up to what Gold her to do. All that tender loving care, nursing and medical skill could do was done for her but all to no avail. God saw it best to take her from us and how hard, how awfully hard it was to give her up. None can know but those who have passed under the same rod.

We know God has promised in His holy word that He will not put a burden on us too heavy for us to bear, and if we did not know it were so and that we could ever rely on His sustaining grace in this, the darkest hour of life. It seemed like it was tearing the very hearts from our bodies to give her up. God help us in this dark hour to be submissive. Help us to say, Lord, thy will be done, and not ours.

May the God of all mercy, wisdom and love watch over us all and comfort us, and may we all live in the future in a way that when we cross the river we shall again behold that loved face and be reunited with her where there will be no more sad partings.

There is only a mist between us,
Our mother so precious and true,
Only a mist between sunrise
That hides you away from our view.
Oft as we ponder at twilight,
O'er the sorrow and joy we did share.
Only a mist between us,
Some morning the angels will come,
And there in a bright land of beauty,
We will be with our mother at home,
No longer in sadness to roam,
But safe in the kingdom of Glory,
We will be with our mother at home.
Only a mist between us,
Not many long years will it stay.
'Tis growing more fleecy and golden,
As earthly life fades fast away.
And when we are thinking so sadly
Of days all so joyous and free,
It is then we are nearest our mother
And it brings sweet comfort to us.

Written by one who loved her dearly.

LENA HARDIN.

STRATTON CENTER OF ANOTHER CHURCH ROW IN NEW YORK

By Associated Press.

New York, June 23.—Objecting to a tendency to emotionalism in church with resulting fainting and shouting, five deacons of Cavalry Baptist church have resigned, declaring themselves "wholly at variance" with the Rev. Dr. John Roach Stratton, pastor, "upon certain fundamental points of doctrine and church conduct."

Declaring a "gag rule" had prevented them from voicing their reasons for resigning at the regular church meeting last night, the deacons announced their action in the newspapers today.

"We are particularly concerned" the statement of the resigning deacons said, "by the recurrence in connection with certain services in this church of manifestations of a nature commonly associated with Pentacostalism."

Stephen A. Bradford, one of the resigning deacons, explained that Pentacostalism is a form of emotionalism which results in fainting and shouting.

With Mr. Bradford those who resigned are:

H. A. Von Opstall, Leonard B. Wilson, John Hurst and Frank E. Wentworth.

"It's the last of the same old crowd who have been making trouble for Cavalry church for a long time," Dr. Stratton asserted.

TESTING CEMENT IN MAGNOLIA WELL TO TRINITY SANDS

Plug was being drilled on the Magnolia McPherson, Trinity sand test at Rice, in order to test the cement job. Cement was poured in the well but the pump had to be sifut down before the proper time and it is feared that there is not enough cement on the outside of the pipe to hold it. If a test shows that the pipe is in a stationary condition, the casing will be allowed to set for a few days in order to harden properly. If a leak develops, then the cement will be drilled out and the hole re-cemented.

Local oil operators are watching the progress of the gasser on the Stubenrauch tract at Mexia, and hope to find a new field of endeavor in the Trinity sand. With the number of dry holes found in wildcat tests put down in the county, the oil fraternity is about convinced that another sand must be located to replace the Woodbine as a producer in this section of the country.

LINDBERGH FLEW TO WASHINGTON FOR AIR CONFERENCE

By Associated Press.

Washington, June 23.—Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Bolling Field at 11:27 a. m. today, having flown here from Dayton, Ohio, in an army plane.

The New York to Paris flyer was met by officials of the War, Navy and Commerce Departments who will confer with him an his future plans and obtain his views on the development of aviation abroad.

About 200 persons, including a dozen or more women, had gathered to see Lindbergh's arrival. There were no ceremonies at the landing.

Major Thomas F. Lanphier, commandant of the first pursuit group of Selfridge Field, Mich., and Lieutenant St. Clair Street, flew here with Lindbergh.

Assistant Secretaries Davison, Warner and McCracken, air officers of the Army and Navy, and Commerce Departments were present. Field officials would not allow Lindbergh to be aproached by those gathered to greet him, and even made an effort to keep secret his destination in the city.

Upon leaving his plane, Colonel Lindbergh went to the home of Major Harvey B. S. Burwell, commandant at the field.

After this, his first engagement was a luncheon given by Secretary Hoover at the Metropolitan Club. The invited guests were the three air secretaries; J. Walter Drake, assistant secretary of commerce, and three of the flyer's backers, W. B. Robertson, Harry H. Knight and Charles Bixley of St. Louis.

Colonel Lindbergh in a brief interview before leaving said he was sorry residents of Dayton were disappointed in not getting to see him last night following his arrival, as scheduled, but stated he knew nothing of plans for a reception and declined to participate because his visit to Dayton was unofficial and for the purpose of paying his respects to Orville Wright only.

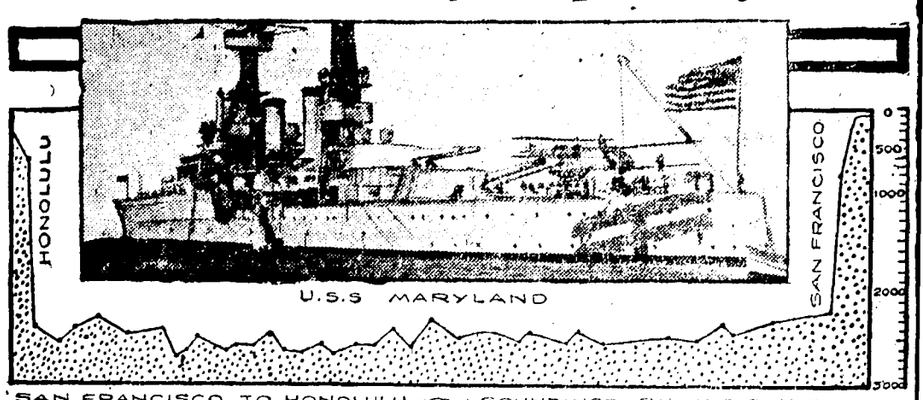
Navy Makes Relief Map Pacific Bed



Soundings of the Pacific Ocean made by the navy are expected to be of great value to navigation. Maps show the varying depths by fathoms of the ocean floor over different stages of travel between San Francisco and Honolulu. Sheer pinnacles rising 24,000 feet in some instances were located.

By Associated Press.

Washington, June 21.—An achievement of the Navy during the cruise of the battle fleet from San Francisco to Australia two years ago has just come to light with publication of under-sea relief maps of the route the ships followed on that historic voyage of more than 7,000 miles.

Graphic representations of soundings taken at the time by the battleship Maryland, the light cruiser Milwaukee and the destroyer Hull close queer outlines of the Pacific's stretches of the route the maps disclose. They are expected to be of incalculable value to navigation in the Pacific as well as to the advancement of the science of oceanography.

Equipped with sonic electric depth sounding devices, it was an easy matter for the ships to chart the bed of the waters as they passed over. They accurately mapped the deepest ravines. Sheer pinnacles rising 24,000 feet in some instances were located. Along other stretches of the route the maps disclosed, suggestive of an impression-istic picture of the sky-line of a great city.

In the opinion of some Navy hydrographers, the bottoms of the oceans and other great bodies of waters may be charted, though they be concealed miles below the surface, even before man concludes his age old task of mapping the exposed portions of the world. And this, they say, is possible without ever dropping a lead line from a ship.

NATIVE WOOL CROP IMPROVES; MEETS 60 PER CENT OF NEEDS

Above—Practical wool clipping on the farm, and Rambouillet buck with fleece weighing 31 1-2 pounds. Right—Mutton type of sheep.

By Associated Press.

Washington, June 21.—Sixty per cent of the United States' wool demand is met within native shores, government data reveals. Lamb production amply supplies the mutton market.

Consistent progress has marked the sheep industry. The trend is toward finer fleece and earlier maturity. All definite improvements, the Bureau of Animal Husbandry says, has resulted from introduction of better-bred sires and zealous effort to retain high standard ewes.

The West, premier wool section, has developed both the quality and quantity of fleece by cross-breeding the Rambouillet ewe with the Lincoln ram, great thick-coated king of the English flocks. The long wool of the foreigner and the rugged constitution of the Rambouillet predominate in the offspring.

While fancy prices are paid for extremely young mutton, sheep raisers in the grain states and New England have found it rarely profitable to market lambs less than three-and-a-half to six months old. Mutton consumption in the United States averages no more than five pounds per capita.

Geographic divisions play important roles in the sheep business. Grains are needed to fatten lambs. Consequently, the East and Middle West have turned primarily to the mutton types. The exception occurs in the Panhandle region of Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, where topography and climate unite for wool production.

Wool is an important factor on Michigan farms, but federal data show that mutton sheep predominate. Development of purebred flocks is more or less universal with 4-H Academy. The Rockies from Canada to New Mexico, host their green slopes and valley ranges the nation's wool producers.

Seven per cent of all the sheep in the United States are found in the Edwards Plateau of west Texas. The rugged Rambouillet thrives in the desert regions while the packs respond to the gentler Columbian breed. New England and the Central states prefer types like the Shropshire. Many breeds are more readily fattened.

Various and [illegible] of the Department of Agriculture to study northern experimental farms with northern breeds have met discouragement. Sheep perishes thrive there and even so-called imported sorts have had short lives. Science has chosen certain breeds of the Rambouillet for government experimental centers.

The native sheep in Florida, Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi are small of no great profit, and usually run wild.

Science has lightened the work of the sheep-shearer.

With deft stroke he separates body and his wool in five minutes. Or power clippers give him the fleece and scientific shearing the [illegible] reported his average is [illegible] hours.

[illegible] have clipped 150 sheep [illegible] An Australian, contesting on a government farm, clipped 16.

Even the farmer who shears his own sheep, shears them quickly. He has handy-size clippers that make it possible, if he is expert enough to shear from four to six sheep every hour.

Hints for the Farm

Furnished by the DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Second growth white ash and hickory in the central states hardwood region frequently bring $25 to $40 per thousand board feet on the stump. Farm woodlands are worth taking care of, just as the other farm crops are.

Whenever possible, stable manure should be hauled directly to the field and spread at once. When this is not feasible a covered storage pit or bin may be provided at a distance from the stable and milk house. Such treatment of manure not only is a health measure, but it is an economy in farm practice. It reduces waste of valuable fertilizing materials.

If dairy yards are kept free of refuse and manure, flies may be more easily handled. They breed in filth and contaminate milk with disease organisms.

In turpentining slash pine trees the cup system is recommended in preference to the old boxing method. Advantages of the cup system are: The yield of turpentine is greater and the quality of rosin better; the loss from fire is greatly lessened through elimination of the deep cut (box) into the tree, and less injury is done to the trees, whereby they are enabled to maintain their vigor, and are less liable to be wind-thrown.

A good-looking cow may not always be the best producer. In judging dairy cattle it is well first to fix clearly in mind the points regarded as most closely associated with milk production, namely, dairy temperament, body capacity, and mammary system. General appearance, type, size and condition are closely related to the so-called fancy points, pretty head, level rump, small horns, straight back and well-balanced udder. While these points are slightly, if at all, correlated with producing ability, they enhance the animal's selling value.

It is useless in the long run and wasteful to advertise a product of which there is not a dependable supply at all times, or to advertise a product that does not come up to the advertised description and bring satisfaction to the consumer.

It is essential to provide sufficient roosting and floor space for hens, so they will be comfortable at night and exercise freely during the day. A plain, shed-roof house with opening in front and rear, according to climatic conditions, is well adapted for any section of the country.

JERSEY SHOW AT STATE FAIR WILL BE BEST IN U. S.

Special to the Sun.

Dallas, Texas, June 22.—To hold, in connection with the Million Dollar Live Stock Show at the State Fair of Texas, Oct. 8 to 23, the largest and best Jersey cattle exhibit ever displayed in the United States, is the aim of the directors, according to Dr. A. E. Flowers, general superintendent of the State Fair live stock department.

To insure this, says Dr. Flowers, the directors have authorized a 33 1-3 per cent. increase in the premiums to be paid in the Jersey department and have increased the premiums to eight moneys in the individual classes. This, it is felt, will attract the best exhibitors in the country and will induce many breeders to exhibit who never before have put their animals in competition. The total result would be the realization of the directors' ambition to make next Octobers' show the best in all America.

"We have in Texas," says Dr. Flowers, "three of the largest herds of Jerseys in the United States. We expect these alone to furnish a battle-royal in the show-ring. Texas is the second leading state in the Union in the total number of Jerseys and every breeder has said he will be represented this Fall, even if with only a few of his best animals, in some cases.

"The impetus that this show will give to the dairying industry in Texas will be tremendous. Hundreds of the very highest class Jerseys will be distributed throughout the state as a result of this exhibition and every man, woman and child will benefit, indirectly, if not directly.

"Nor is this all," he concluded. "All dairymen do not favor the Jersey. Many prefer the Holstein, the Guernsey or the Ayrshire. We will have a fine show in each of these classes, too. The Holstein-Friesian Association of Texas has renewed its interest in the breeding industry an dwill be well represented here. Guernseys and Ayrshires are not as numerous in Texas as Jerseys or Holsteins, but we are assured that many splendid herds of the former two will be exhibited."

By Associated Press.

Abilene, Texas, June 21.—More than 2,500 delegates are expected to attend the convention of the Texas postal workers which will be held here July 4, 5, and 6.

These meetings are expected to bring together the largest number of mail handlers ever assembled at one place in the history of Texas. The organization to meet here includes the Texas Rural Letter Carriers Association on July 4, 5, and 6; Texas branch of the National League of District Postmasters, (third and fourth class) July 4 and 5; Texas branch of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks July 4 and 5, and the Texas branch of the National Association of Postal Supervisors, July 5 and 6.

On July 5, all four organizations will be here and on that day a joint program will be given in which representatives of each body will take part. Several men prominent in the national postal serive will be here for that occasion. Hon. W. R. Ely, member of the State Highway Commission have both accepted invitations to speak during the day.

On the evening of that day the Abilene Chamber of Commerce will be host to all the delegates and their families for an open-air banquet which will be prepared and served under the direction of Will W. Watson, famous in West Texas for his picnics.

Guy W. McCarty, director of the Chamber of Commerce conventions bureau has announced a program of entertainment and amusement for the visitors which will supplement the business session and which will keep the delegates and their guests busy from the time the first one arrives till the last one starts home.

On July 4, first day of the convention, the West Texas Fair Racing association will stage their annual mid-Summer automobile races which have attracted thousands from all over the southwest in the seasons past. It will be possible for the postal workers to see these races along with attending their annual conventions.

Ample accommodations to house all those who come have already been provided. The local arrangement committee has been advised that a large number of the delegates will come overland prepared for camping out while here and plenty of space for them will be available in the Fair Park where all conveniences for outdoor living will be obtainable.

DR. SANER ASKED TO ATTEND REUNION OF HIS CLASSMATES

Dr. Eugene E. Sanner, of Corsicana, has received an invitation to attend a unique reunion of his osteopathic college class on Pike's Peak on July 30.

This reunion is to be one of the social features in connection with the International Osteopathic convention which will meet in Denver the last week of July.

Many osteopathic college classes are arranging reunions at one or another of the countless spots of beauty within reasonable distance of Denver.

The doctors who have been advising all their patients to undergo thorough health examinations will have a chance to set a good example at this convention. A group of diagnostic experts will be in attendance to examine the doctors themselves very thoroughly along the lines of general physical condition, heart, lungs, digestive tract, nerves, eye, ear, nose and throat, x-ray, blood, excretions, secretions and everything else it take to round out the thorough structural examination of the body machine which is the basic part of all osteopathic diagnosis.

Dr. Sanner is a graduate of American School of Osteopathy in 1901.

TO FATHER

I never knew what it would mean
To call thee, and thou answer not—
Oh, how responsive was thy heart
When hardship was my rugged lot!
And, when my great bereavement came,
And deepest sorrows filled my eyes,
Thy heart, in loving sympathy,
Did heave, afresh, bereavement's sighs.

I never knew what it would mean
To look upon thy pallid face—
To know that thou no more would sing
The anthems of redeeming grace.
Thy sightless eyes will no more shed
Emotion's pure and honest tears,
Which I so oft have witnessed as
We walked together down the years.

I never knew what it would mean
To look upon thy vacant chair—
To look, with sad and broken heart,
But never see thee sitting there.
How oft in seasons of the past
Have I to thee in trouble gone,
And came away with lighter heart—
With prospects of a brighter dawn!

I never knew! I never knew!
Farewell, farewell, my sainted Sire!
How shall I miss in days to come
The warmth of thy parental fire!
One harvest is forever past!
Its summer comes no more to me!
God give me, when I come th die,
The dying grace Te gave to thee.

AFFIDAVIT CLAUSE SEARCH AND SEIZURE ACT DECLARED VOID

By Associated Press.

Austin, Texas, June 22.—For the first time in the history of Texas, the Court of Criminal Appeals split today on the requists of the search and warrant sworn out on information of "two credible persons."

The one-year liquor prison sentence of Roy Chapin, Shackleford county was reversed and remanded in an opinion by Presiding Judge Morrow, Justice Hawkins concurring, holding that the warrant for search of Chapin's tent where a gallon of whiskey was found, was not legally sufficient as based merely on affidavit of two persons "with reason to believe" he was violating the law.

Justice Lattimore, in a lengthy dissenting opinion, declared the majority opinion has set up a "hydra-headed, unprecedented substitute" for present rules governing issuance of search warrants.

Justices Morrow and Hawkins held that "belief (of two affiants) on undisclosed information does not show" the probable cause deemed necessary for search. They ruled in effect that "belief" of the affiants must be support in the affidavit by some definite information relating to the alleged violation. The Federal rule to this effect was cited.

"Exemption from unreasonable search," Judge Morrow said, is "a cherished right which makers of the constitution and laws have been zealous in guarding and the courts in preserving."

Justice Hawkins declared that Texas now has no valid law authorizing liquor search solely on unsupported belief.

NEW EVIDENCE IS ALLEGED FOUND IN CASE OF SLAYERS

By Associated Press.

New Orleans, June 21.—The Supreme Court today refused writs of habeas corpus for Robert and Byron Dunn, condemned for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Sam Duhon of Calcasieu parish. Application for writs was filed yesterday, charging that the two were convicted in a court dominated by the Ku Klux Klan.

Only the appeal for a re-hearing by the Pardon Board yet remains to furnish a glimmer of hope to Byron Dunn. The pardon board already has recommended that the sentence be commuted to life sentence.

By Associated Press.

New Orleans, June 21.—Attorneys for Byron and Robert Dunn, condemned slayers of Deputy Sheriff Sam Duhon, of Calcasiu parish, announced today they would appeal to the State Pardon Board for a re-hearing on the ground that they were now in possession of newly discovered evidence.

The announcement came with the news from Baton Rouge that Governor O. H. Simpson was making a final study of the records in the case to determine if he would follow the recent recommendation of the Pardon Board that the sentence of Robert Dunn be commuted to life imprisonment.

Application was filed yesterday for a writ of habeas corpus on the contention that the two men had been convicted in a court dominated by the Ku Klux Klan.

TEXAS WEATHER IS THAT OF EXTREMES RECORDS INDICATE

By Associated Press.

Houston, June 21.—In no state in the Union probably do such extremes exist as in Texas. Frequently sweltering weather is encountered in towns on the Mexican border and almost freezing temperature rgeistered in the Panhandle on or about the same date.

The May weather report, issued here by L. H. Daingerfield, government meterologist, shows that the highest daily temperature was 115 degrees at Ft .McIntosh on May 7 and three days later the mercury fell to 31 at Dalhart. Each represented temperature extremes for the month in the state. The monthly range within the sate was 84 degrees and greatest daily range was 57 degrees, at Clint on May 28. The monthly mean for the state at shown at 129 recording stations, was 77.6 degrees which was 4.5 degrees above normal.

May weather, according to this showing was not only warmer than the average May but less rain also fell. Reports to Mr. Daingerfield from 225 stations showed a state average of but 1.64 inches, which was 2.03 inches less than the state normal. Even 6.09 inches at Bon Wier during the month could not bring the average up to the usual figures because no rain fell at 12 stations and only a trace at two others, even though 4.22 inches fell at Hico on May 12, which was the greatest precipitation in 24 consecutive hours of any point in the state.

Sixteen days were clear, 11 partly cloudy and four cloudy. Prevailing directions of the wind was from the south and the highest velocity was 57 miles an hour at El Paso on May 7.

COST OF BUILDINGS AND PAVING TO RUN CLOSE TO MILLION

SEVERAL HANDSOME HOMES ARE BEING ERECTED IN CORSICANA NOW

Corsicana is in the midst of something of a building boom, especially in the matter of fine residences, and many thousands of dollars are being spent in the city for homes, business houses and municipal improvements. At the present time there is being spent in round numbers the sum of $925,000 in major building projects, with the outlay incident to the paving of many miles of streets leading with an estimated sum of $400,000.

F N. Drane is completing a large two-story, modern building at the corner of Collin and Commerce streets which will entail an expenditure of around $75,000. The ground floors of this building, which occupies a quarter of a block, are to be occupied by business houses, while for the most part the upper floors will be occupied as offices by several cotton firms and individual buyers. This building has reached such a stage that several firms are already housed therein. J. E. Metcalf & Son were architects and contractors on this building.

The Corsicana Compress Company is making considerable improvements at their big plant on East Collin street and the Houston and Texas Central railroad with the main feature being the installation of a big and completely modern press. The outlay will be around $50,000, it has been learned, for the press and the necessary changes in the plant incident to its installation. The press is now being installed and will be ready for the coming season early in the fall, it is stated. The old press is being moved out and will be shipped to another point.

Two Hospitals and Clinics

The Corsicana Hospital and Clinic, which will cost when completed about $100,000, is rapidly nearing completion. This building, locates at the corner of Twelfth street and Sixth avenue, was formerly the home of the Corsicana Elks Club, and is being completely remodeled and renovated throughout. It will be one of the most modern clinics and small hospitals in the Southwest when completed. There will be room for twenty patients in the hospital section, while the operating and clinical departments will be modern throughout, with a laboratory in connection. The architects are Coburn and Smith of Dallas and H. O. Blanding of Corsicana. Haslam Bros. are contractors.

The Navarro Hospital and Clinic to be located at the corner of Collin and Thirteenth streets, will entail an outlay of some $75,000 for the building, and bids will be opened Thursday, June 23, for this structure, which will be four stories high and will be modern in every particular. H. O. Blanding, architect for this building, states that the last word in clinics and hospitals has been incorporated in this plant and that it will be in keeping with advanced ideas in surgery and medicine.

Theatre Improvements

Improvements on the Ideal Theatre call for an outlay of $15,000 The theatre wil be modernized in every particular and renovated throughout. The lobby is being changed and improvements will be made throughout the house, which already was one of the most commodious and modern playhouses in the State. The theatre will be closed for some time pending the completion of the improvements. Coburn and Smith, architects of Dallas, drew the plans for these improvements. John W. Carson has the contract for this work.

E. L. Keith has recently completed the construction of six store buildings at the corner of Twelfth and Sixth Avenue, opposite the Corsicana Hospital and Clinic, at a cost of about $15,000. The buiding is modern in all particulars and the stores are all well lighted and ventilated. The building is a one story structure and modern plate glass windows are used throughout. H O. Blanding, local architect, drew the plans for the building while Horace Carson was the contractor for the same.

Handsome Home

One of the most pretentious homes in the state is being erected in Mills Place, a restricted residential district, for H. R. Stroube, local oil operator. This will be a concrete, brick and stone structure throughout, to contain fourteen rooms and with garage, servants' quarters and a most elaborate system of landscaping, is expected to cost in the neighborhood of $100,000. This home, with its surroundings, will be one of the most attractive homes in this part of Texas when completed. The foundation for the building is alreday complete, while work is progresing on the landscaping feature on that part of the lot in the rear of the residence, the lot extending through to Sycamore avenue. Foshee and Cheek, architects of Dallas, drew the plans for this home, which is being built under their supervision with a Dallas man as superintendent of the work. C. A. Mullin, local plumbing contractor, has the contract for the extensive system of plumbing which will modernize this home.

R. L. Calkins is completing a modern, brick veneer home next to the Stroube home, which will run well above $15,000 in cost when completed. This home in on an English style of architecture and all modern conveniences are being installed. Mr. Calkins had his foundation and cellar put in several months ago and it was permitted to set for some months before the work of actual construction on the home itself was begun. When completed this will be one of the most modern and comfortable homes in Corsicana. M. T. Horne, local architect, drew the plans for this home and Whiteselle Brick and Lumber Co. have the contract for its construction. Mr. Calkins hopes to be able to move in within a few weeks.

Other Mills Place Homes

J. M. Dyer, Jr., is erecting a handsome two-story home in Mills place a little further west than the Stroube and Calkins homes, on a beautiful lot studded with fine oak trees, adjoining the handsome home of Dr. T. P. McLendon. Everything modern is being incorporated in this home and it is being built along colonial lines, which is one of the best lines of architecture for the Southland. With its beautiful surrounding this will be one of the most attractive homes in Corsicana when completed, which is expected to take place within the next few weeks. M. T. Horne is the architect for this home, while J. E. Metcalf & Son have the contract for the construction of the building.

Dr. Homer B. Jester has let the contract to J. A. Clark, general contractor, for a handsome nine-room, two-story brick veneer home in Mills Place, opposite the Calkins home, which will cost about $17,000 when completed. This will be the fourth handsome home under construction in Mills Place, within a stone's throw of each other. Harry O. Blanding, popular local architect, drew the plans for this home. As above stated J. A. Clark is the general contractor, while Claude Carson has the contract for the brick work on this home, as he also has for the Stroube and Calkins homes.

Jester Place Home.

Another handsome home is being erected in Jester Place by M. L. Levine, which is expected to cost in the neighborhood of $30,000. This will be one of the finest homes in that section of the city and will add materially to that section of beautiful and costly homes. Foundation is already being put in for this residence and indications already are that it will be modern and beautiful. The residence is being erected at the corner of Twenty-Fifth street and Park avenue, on a large, high corner lot and will be of light buff brick construction and will be one of the most handsome and modern homes in the city. Wilfred Boone of Fort Worth is architect for this home and John Stein, also of Fort Worth prominent contractor of that city and uncle of Mrs. Levine, will construct the building.

G. E. Mitchell is having a handsome two-story home erected on West Second avenue, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, and the building is nearing completion. This will be a most handsome and complete home when it is finished and will be an ornament to this section of pretty homes. The McCammon and Lang Lumber Company furnished the plans for this home and this company also has the contract for erecting the building. It is estimated that the cost will run above $10,000.

School Building Addition

John W. Carson, local contractor, has the contract for erecting an addition to the handsome brick school buiding at Mildred, the work to cost about $9,000. Mildred already has a handsome and substantial brick school building and this adition will provide room for additional pupils.

The work of paving Corsicana's streets is progressing rapidly and an estimate from the city authorities is to the effect that when completed the paving work itself will provide for an outlay of $200,000, while the additional work incident to preparations for the paving, such as the moving and lowering of water and gas pipes, moving telephone and electric light poles and the building of new driveways for homes along the newly paved streets will amount to another $100,000.

Many miles of paved roads are also soon to be under construction in Consolidated Road District No. 1, as bonds in the amount of $2,690,000 were recently voted for this purpose. Preliminary matters in connection with the issuance and sale of the bonds are now being disposed of and actual construction will be rushed.

INFORMATION ON NEW RURAL SCHOOL LAWS ENACTED

STATE FUNDS TO BE GRANTED TO ALL RURAL SCHOOLS ALIKE

The following article is portions of a communication received by Andrew G Steele, superintendent of Navarro county, from the State Department of Education, rural school division, relative to the new rural school law recently enacted.

"No school of over 300, or district of over 400 including transfers, or school of less than 20 scholastics will be eligible for aid.

"Using state and county funds solely, we shall grant to all eligible schools enough State aid to maintain each school exactly the same length of term, not to exceed six months, leaving each district to maintain its schools as many months longer as its local funds will permit. Thus not again can it be charged that state aid is being granted to help some schools run six months, others seven months and others eight months. Under the terms of this new law, any school may be extended to seven, eight or nine months out of its local funds if such funds will permit.

Must Set Salary

"If the State is to provide a uniform term for all schools, necessarily it must set a maximum salary which it will pay out of state funds. (A schedule of salaries now being paid over the State was inclosed to Superintendent Steele). Trustees still have the authority under general law to set the salaries to be paid, and they must pay more or less than those stated in the schedule, provided the monthly salary fixed for the term paid out of State funds is not greater than that to be paid during the remainder of the term out of local funds, and provided any excess above the State schedule must be paid out of local funds.

Equipment Increase

"Note that $300. has been provided for industrial equipment instead of $250. as in former appropriations. This will permit some additional equipment, which will be listed soon in a bulletin to be printed. Note also the provisions for $100. for schools in which this equipment has previously been placed, if they meet the conditions stated.

"The act of the 40th Legislature, regular session, which provides any district may transfer pupils of high school grade not provided for in its own district and pay tuition therefor beyond the term paid for by the per capita apportionment, in amount not to exceed $5. a month, will soon be printed with other recent school legislation, and mailed to all county superintendents. Where a district can show that it has not sufficient funds to pay such tuition, it will be reimbursed July 1st. of each year from the $100,000. provided in this section."

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

Furnished by the DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Choose plain-colored curtain material if you have a figured wallpaper. If the walls and most of the furnishing are plain, the curtains may be figured, but preferably with the background the same color or slightly deeper than the walls.

In selecting figured curtain materials choose conventional designs that will stand the test of being looked at day after day. Sprawling designs tend to make the window look shorter and broader. Stripes increase the apparent height and if used in excess give a stiff, uncomfortable effect.

Measure your windows with care before buying curtain material, and cut the goods by a thread if possible. Accuracy in cutting and neat sewing go a long way toward insuring well-hanging curtains.

If you have more fruit and vegetables than can be used in the summer, can the surplus. The United States Department of Agriculture will furnish free on request a bulletin on economical and practical canning.

It is a waste of time to can vegetables that can be stored, such as mature beets, turnips, carrots, sweet potatoes, parsnips, winter squash and pumpkin.

On a stout figure a set-in sleeve is more becoming than the raglan or kimono style. These later styles are correct for the slender- square-shouldered type.

Before cutting out a dress from a pattern make sure the shoulder line of the back section is one-half inch longer than the shoulder line of the front section. This extra length is eased onto the front edge when the shoulder seam is basted. Cut the dress that way even if the pattern does not make the allowance, for it insures a better fit.

Foods which have to be carved should be served on platters large enough to insure ample room. Foods which may have their appearance spoiled during the carving operation should not be placed around a roast.

To prevent shoes from mildewing in a dark closet during warm, damp weather, keep them on shoetrees or stuffed with paper and placed in a well ventilated, dry, light place. If any mildew is found, wash it off with warm water and soap, or simply wipe off and dry the leather well afterward.

A weak solution of washing soda boiled in tin and enamel cooking utensils will remove any food which may have stuck to them. Soda never should be used on aluminum.

A watery meringue often is due to baking at too high temperature. This has a tendency to brown the meringue over the top before the egg white is baked through, causing a watery layer to form next to the custard filling. Put the pudding or pie covered with meringue into a very slow oven and allow about 20 minutes to cook it.

DRANE WOMAN HAS EVOLVED IMPROVED KITCHEN AT HOME

HANDICAPPED IN HER HOME WORK, MRS. WEEKS WORKS OUT PLAN

Handicapped by her small stature and incapacitated for doing her house work because of fallen arches, Mrs. M. E. Weeks of Drane, solved her problem of housework by rearranging her kitchen so that she could save countless steps and do her own work and at the same time have a kitchen that has been highly praised by members of the Home Demonstration Club of her community.

Mrs. Weeks realized that almost all of her work would have to be done from a sitting position, and as her kitchen was small, she had her dining table moved into the kitchen. This was a starting point.

A sink was installed and water was piped into the kitchen from the cistern, thus solving the problem of water. But there was a great need for cabinet space; the first move was to saw off an old sofa below the drawers and place it on top of a topless cabinet, furnishing a complete cabinet. One side of the room was then converted into a built-in cabinet. All of the woodwork was painted in an ivory tint.

Other improvements included a wall lamp, a towel rack and a window seat. The estimated expense of the improvements was $18.10; all of the labor being done by the husband and other members of the family. The itemized account: Lumber and nails $10.20; connections $4; faucets 80 cents; paint $1.95; curtains, 40 cents, curtain rods, towel rack and wall lamp 75 cents.

With the changes made in the arrangement of the kitchen, Mrs. Weeks is able to care for the cabinets, stove and table from her chair or at most by taking two or three steps.

TEXAS FACTS REFUTE MINNESOTA SLANDERS SAYS HOWARD L. CLARK

STATE OF TRULY WONDERFUL RESOURCES, PROGRESS—BIG FEATURE

By HOWARD L. CLARK
(In Manufacturers Record)

Minnesota is a great State. It has many fine people of high intelligence within its borders. For that reason the Manufacturers Record has been surprised that some officials or officials of its State government are either misinformed or misinformed, or else they could not have been guilty of an absurd tirade against Texas—the great Empire State of the Union, but I have seen no Minnesota reply to this slander against Texas. Uninformed individuals here and there and interests for selfish reasons have tried to malign the South or some part of it, but the occasion is rare, indeed, when a governmental departments permits itself to exhibit ignorance about any portion of the United States so dense that it is tragic. In a warning to the people of Minnesota against an enterprise to sell land in Texas to the residents of the former State, the Division of Immigration of the Minnesota State Department of Conservation, in a recent bulletin, implored the people of Minnesota not to go to

"the sultry South, with its hot, destructive winds, its drouths, its boll weevils, corn borers and other destructive insects, its lack of comforts and facilities to which they have become accustomed in this State, to mix with the heterogeneous hordes, consisting largely of Mexicans, negroes and mixed bloods which predominate in many parts of Texas."

For charity's sake we shall draw no comparison between Minnesota and Texas to its detriment of the former and far less shall the South attempt to disparage any other section of the country in order to present its own advantages. The South and Texas do not need to base their case on the negative side through misrepresentation of other sections. There is such a vast array of constructive facts on the positive side about the South that the half has never yet been told of its advantages, resources and record of achievement.

As to the various fantastic evils with which the Division of Immigration of the Minnesota Department of Conservation in its bulletin asserts Texas to be afflicted, I will cite a few facts about this great Southern State. Texas needs no defense of what it is and what it has accomplished, but the uninformed and the misinformed need to be rightly informed.

First of all, Texas is a mighty [illegible] within itself, its total area [illegible] square miles, 262,398 [illegible]es being its land area. [illegible] covers a territory 12,000 [illegible]as larger than the four [illegible] Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, [illegible]esota combined.

[illegible]s as large as the com[illegible]a of 12 Eastern and North [illegible]tates (one-quarter of all [illegible] in the Union), embracing [illegible]w England States and [illegible] New Jersey, Pennsyl[illegible]are, Ohio, and Mich[illegible]rmore, Texas, with [illegible]ural resources and [illegible]tiful scenery, is 54,[illegible]les larger than the [illegible]ce and 83,000 square [illegible]than Germany. The [illegible]one in Texas nearly [illegible]otal area of Germany. [illegible]ay still be skeptical of [illegible]s" of Texas, let it be [illegible]one can travel 740 miles [illegible]th to South and 826 miles [illegible]st to West and still remain [illegible] its borders. If the eastern [illegible] Texas were moved to New [illegible] City, the western end would [illegible]d beyond Chicago, the south[illegible] point would be near Raleigh, N. [illegible]d the norther border 50 miles [illegible]d Sault St. Marie, Mich.

[illegible] Texas Almanac of 1927 pro[illegible] variety and magnitude of [illegible] resources in the follow[illegible]

[illegible]s has in its pine-timber belt [illegible] containing 17,000,000,000 [illegible] of pine and 8,000,000,000 [illegible]-feet of hardwoods (in addition [illegible] supporting a great and varied agricultural industry) an area as large as Indiana. Texas has an area along the coast, lying less than 150 feet above sea level and having a subtropical climate, equal to the area of South Carolina. Texas has an area lying in a middle temperate climate and ranging from 3,000 to 4,000 feet above sea level and being 75 or more per cent cultivable as large as Pennsylvania. Texas has a mountainous area west of the Pecos as large as the State of West Virginia. Texas has a uniformly good farming country, well watered and ranging in altitude from 200 to 2,000 feet above sea level, situated in Central and Mid-West Texas equal to the areas of Ohio and Kentucky. Texas has an area in the Edwards Plateau, admirably adapted to cattle, sheep and goat raising and diversified crop production, as large as the State of Tennessee. Texas has the third longest coast line among the States, and yet it is from the standpoint of actual distance of most of its territory from the sea and from the standpoint of transportation and transportation problems, a great inland empire. Briefly Texas is large, and it is enormously varied. It is the variety rather than the size that is chiefly interesting and that is latent with great possibility."

"In a territory so vast Texas can offer a variety of climate from that of the temperate Southern coast and Rio Grande Valley region through the plains to the mountains of the West, where on peak rises to a height of over 9,000 feet. One point should be remembered, however, with regard to all of its great variety of climate no part of Texas is ever frozen in the zero temperature for months at a time. Its climate permits year-round activity, with portions of the State harvesting fruits and vegetables before the North has dug out of its winter snows, which have stagnated business and kept the people housed for weeks at a time.

"In a territory so vast Texas has immense mineral and soil resources that yield an abundance of mineral and agricultural products.

With a territory so vast and resources of such magnitude, the great development of Texas in the last decade or so only illustrates what may be expected in the future.

The population of Texas now estimated at about 5,500,000, largely rural, has increased 65 per cent in the last 25 years. Although its Southern border extends for over 500 miles along Mexico, more than 75 per cent of Texas' population, according to the last general census, is comprised of native white Americans, while less than 8 per cent is foreign born and less than 16 per cent colored. The South as a whole has a foreign born population of only 2.7 per cent, in comparison with as high as 25 per cent for some sections of the country.

Texas' foreign stock, those of foreign birth and of foreign born parentage, number 806,000, or slightly more than 17 per cent of the total population as of the census of 1920. Mexicans comprise 49 per cent of this foreign stock; Germans 19 per cent; Austrians 8 per cent; Swedes, English and others make up the remainder. The Mexican population is centered along the southern border of Texas extending into the western part of the State, with a few in the northern and part of the eastern section. Negroes are found mostly in the eastern, central and southern parts of the State. The Mexicans and negroes are principally farm workers, and as farm laborers are exceptionally valuable.

With its increasing population and agricultural and industrial expansion the wealth of Texas has made a gain of more than $7,500,000,000, or 324 per cent, since 1900. It is estimated that the wealth of Texas is now over $10,000,000,000, or more than one-ninth of the total value of all property in the United States 25 years ago. The assessed value of all taxable property in Texas is now about four times what it was in 1900. Farms and farm property represent the largest single item in the wealth of the State, but industrial interests are expanding so rapidly that the value of manufactured products is now about one-third larger than the aggregate value of all farm products. The estimated value of all farm property in Texas is over $3,500,000,000, or an increase of nearly 60 per cent since 1910.

Out of a total land area of 167,934,000 acres, Texas farms embrace 109,798,000 acres. Only 44,181,000 acres of farm land are classed as improved and in 1926 the aggregate farm crop acreage of the State was 29,948,000 acres. More than 100,000,000 acres in Texas are said to be suitable for cultivation.

As will be seen from these figures, the future agricultural possibilities of Texas, measured by what has been done, are enormous, although for some years Texas has been the leading or next to the leading agricultural State in the Union. It not only produces 31 per cent of the cotton crop of the United States, or over three times the production of any other State in the South, which furnishes more than half of the world's supply, growing more than 5,600,000 bales in 1926, with a value in excess of $320,000,000, but Texas can produce and is producing practically every variety of crop grown in the United States. The total value of its agricultural output in 1926 was $940,000,000, with cotton, its major farm crop, representing about one-third of the amount.

In 1926 Texas produced 106,865,000 bushels of corn, 32,796,000 bushels of wheat, 83,666,000 bushels of oats, 42,276,000 bushels of grain sorghums to mention some of the larger grain crops of the State, and in addition 49,345,000 pounds of peanuts, 10,656,000 bushels of potatoes, 6,142,000 bushels of rice and many other crops. With the South furnishing about one-half of the commercial truck crop values of the country, Texas, with a trucking crop value of $18,690,000, in 1926 was the third leading Southern State.

Crop diversification in the State is making rapid strides, with the whole Rio Grande Valley region becoming one of the nation's garden spots. While an enormous gain has been made in food crops Texas is still one of the leading cattle States of the Union, over 13,000,000 head of livestock being on Texas farms.

Turkey raising with an annual output of $10,000,000, pecan growing, the development of a large citrus and fig industry are some of the farm activities attracting attention. The "Onion King of the World," C. H. Melton of Devine, Texas, thinks nothing of seeding 2,000 acres in Bermuda onions and producing 2,000,000,000 onion plants, while at the same time planting four tons of cabbage and other vegetable seed. During 1926 the Melton farms, which employ approximately 6,000 people, shipped in the early spring 300 carloads of plants and in between crop seasons last summer shipped 63 cars of green corn to Eastern markets.

Ask H. C. Melton, once a poor farmer boy who has dug wealth out of the soil of Texas, what he knows about Texas.

Ask Ed C. Lasater of Falfurrias, Texas, who has a 380,000 acre ranch in five South Texas counties and has built up the largest Jersey dairy herd in the world, what he knows about the State.

Ask Wat Walker, aged 26, down near the Rio Grande, who is said to have made $50,000 in three years growing spinach; ask Mrs. W. A. Mathews of Renner, Texas, who runs a small tenant farm; ask any Texan, whether a native or adopted citizen, not only the large ranch owner or the successful truck grower farming a large acreage, why they prefer to live in Texas and what they think of its opportunities.

Texas still has farms and ranches of immense size, but large land holdings are being divided into smaller farms, for Texas now has over 466,000 farms, as against 352,290 in 1900. It is this broader individual ownership and operation of former Texas farm tracts of large acreage which is advancing agriculture and increasing diversification. Many communities a few years ago not even marked on the railroad map, are today modern towns on modern highways. They have become the centers of rich agricultural regions. Other cities have sprung up as if by magic with the discovery of oil and have continued to grow with the development of the surrounding territory.

Backing the great agricultural activity of Texas is its rapidly expanding industrial development. According to the census of 1925, the value of Texas' manufacturers amounted to $1,238,000,000, or $334,000,000 more than the value of its agricultural output that year. Truly a striking indication of the expansion and diversification under way in Texas.

Cotton manufacturing in Texas is increasing. In 1925 the value of cotton mill products was $19,734,000, as compared with an output of $2,815,000 in 1910. The furniture industry has more than doubled since 1910, now having an annual production of $3,848,000. Texas has a great timber region and the production of lumber in 1925 was 1,578,000,000 cubic feet, ranking it with the larger lumber-producing States of the South, which now supplies nearly one-half of the total lumber output of the country.

The value of the mineral output of Texas in 1925 was $351,000,000, or nearly twenty times its output in 1910. More than 163,000,000 barrels of petroleum were produced in Texas in 1926, which is more than half of what the whole country produced in 1910. Texas now produces 1,890,000 tons of sulphur which is 99.9 percent of all the sulphur mined in this country. Recent potash discoveries in Western Texas may mean the development of one of the world's greatest resources of fertilizer materials, the value of which to this country would be immeasurable. Among the minerals produced in Texas are salt, gypsum, fuller's earth, clay, lime, building stone and granite, lead, zinc, quicksilver, asphalt, iron, coal and a variety of others as yet but little developed. In fuel resources Texas, in addition to its oil and gas, has a considerable coal area and lignite deposits of vast limitless extent. Texas mined over 1,000,000 tons of coal in 1926 and is known to have 8,000,000,000 tons of coal and 23,000,000,000 tons of lignite reserves.

In its power development Texas, through the development of water resources and the utilization of lignite, is keeping pace with the demand of industry and is building a foundation for further expansion.

The financial growth of Texas, in addition to the hundreds of millions of dollars of outside capital annually invested in the State in order to develop and operate business of the magnitude now reached, is shown in the increase of $903,000,000 in bank resources and $668,000,000 in bank deposits since 1910. Last year the aggregate bank resources of Texas were 1,276,763,000 and individual deposits were over $864,000,000.

Through Southern ports pass more than one-third of the foreign commerce of the United States. Texas plays an important role in this foreign trade. Texas ranks third in exports and sixth in imports in volume of tonnage handled by all the ports of the country. The total value of merchandise exported through Texas ports in 1926 were in excess of $670,000,000, an amount greater than the South's total exports in 1910. Through the Galveston district alone in 1926 the value of exports was $513,825,000, exceeding by $17,000,000 the combined value from all of the Pacific Coast ports.

With a railroad mileage of 5332 and with modern highways the transportation facilities of Texas are keeping pace with its general developments. Highway expenditures in the State in 1926 amounted to $35,659,020, which is within $23,000,000 of the aggregate highway expenditures of the entire country in 1904.

Public education in Texas is matching the advancement made by the State agricultural, industrial and commercial lines. Public school expenditures of Texas are now over $55,000,000 annually, or five times similar expenditures for 1910 and within $25,000,000 of what the 16 Southern States spent that year. The South as a whole expended for public education in 1924 $364,863,000, or $150,000,000 more than the entire country spent in 1900. More than 22 per cent of Texas' public educational expenditures was for new school buildings and equipment. In 1910 the number of pupils enrolled in Texas public schools was 821,631 and in 1924 there were 1,194,655 pupils. About 80 per cent of the State's population between five and seventeen years were enrolled in public elementary and secondary schools. In 1914 Texas had 46,573 students in public high and normal schols and 225,571 in 1924, or about five times as many as were enrolled 15 years ago. In addition there were enrolled in private schools and colleges of Texas more than 60,000 students. There is invested in land, buildings and equipment more than $34,000,000 in the universities, colleges and professional schools of Texas.

A number of universities heavily endowed by the State or individuals or religious bodies give to Texas a remarkable power in educational work. The State University was many years ago endowed by the legislature with an immense area of public land. The income that the university is now receiving from oil on this land promises to make perhaps the richest university in America.

But to attempt to catalogue the resources of Texas or to make people who have not been there grasp the extent of its territory, the rapidity of its development in education, in industry, in agriculture, in commrece, in population and in wealth would be almost a hopeless task. I have simply sketched a few of the outstanding facts about Texas.

RURAL HOMES BRIGHTENED

Newly improved farm living room at Earleysville, Va.

Wherever she may be, the American farm woman is an exponent of economical home improvement, government data shows.

Through county home demonstration agents, and perhaps the state home furnishing specialist, she has learned how to beautify her surroundings in a limited time and with a small expenditure.

The accompanying picture is considered an outstanding example. It shows a living-room from which wall paper, unsightly from twenty years' use, was removed. The plaster was patched and the walls given two coats of dark cream paint.

An old wood-burner stove, in use for many years, was removed and the fireplace cleaned and repaired. An old-fashioned pair of andirons, with tongs an shovel, was purchased for $1.10, and the whole fireplace painted black.

The floor, already in good condition, was cleaned and oiled. All woodwork in the room was painted a dark brown color. Old chairs were painted or varnished. Stone crocks, bought at a sale, were painted yellow for use as vases. A small writing desk was made of boards and broom handles.

Rags were dyed yellow and brown and fashioned into a rug. A table runner was made from an old linen sheet dyed yellow. Inside curtains were fashionable of cream scrim, and the valance and side draperies made of material already on hand.

Candlesticks were purchased for ten cents, bringing the entire cost of improvement to a total of $10.50.

CORSICANA OWNED WELL AT CURRIE IS BE MADE PUMPER

The Currie Oil Corporation's Meadows 1 in the old discovery field at Currie has been completed at a depth of 2990. Casing has been set, and the plug drilled, and the well is now being rigged up for a pumper. The well has about 1500 feet of oil in the hole, but there is not enough gas pressure to flow. No estimate has been made on the production.

The lease was secured by a number of Corsicana men who formed the company and put down the well. The lease formerly belonged to the Pure Oil Company, and is a part of the original field at Mexia, and is near the discovery well.

Obituary of My Little Pal.

Martha Ellen Holleman was born May 28, 1898 in Emmitt community. Died June 3, 1927 11:35 a. m. in P. & S. Hospital, Corsicana, Tex., she living around Bazette and Kerens most all hre life, was married to Robert J. Standlee April 4, 1920. To them a dear baby girl was born Feb. 10, 1921. Little Helen Ruth who is left with a broken hearted husband to grieve her loss with many other relatives. Oh how sad to give her up; everything was done for her with kind loving hands and good physicians, that could be done and daily prayers, but all in vain. She was a dear sweet mother, wife and neighbor; everyone loved one who knew her; her sweet smiles and cheerful voice with her glad songs will be missed; was ever ready to do what she could for those who needed kind words and help. Oh how I loved her; she knew as a sister how we will all miss her in our homes; her cheerful voice, and always with a smile.

Her last remains were laid to rest at 2:30 o'clock in the Prairie Point cemetery beneath a beautiful bed of flowers June 4, Rev. Wm. Phillips conducting funeral services. A large funeral procession of sorrowing friends and relatives followed the remains from Corsicana to join many others of her school mates and many friends of Bazette. God knew best. Would been only a few more days to suffer it out without trying the serious operation which she wanted done. She was willing to do God's will and was ready to go; was saved when a young school girl, and in summer 1925 gave her heart and soul to God, joined the Primitive Baptist church and was baptized. We shall, as God said, know them by their daily walks an every one knew her well to be a child of God. I, living as her neighbor 5 1-2 years, knew and loved her dearly and we were the best of pals; also her little girl being dear to us, as she is so much like my own I gave to God April 19, 1921. I loved her and she knew as a sister. Oh, it's so lonely without my little pal; does not seem like the same little home, it's so broken up. Grieve not dear husband, baby girl and other loved ones, we know it's so hard to give her up, but that awful suffering is over. I know you as well as we were so anxious for the outcome of that serious operation we all dreaded, but God knew best to take her easy and now she is in sweet peace, her suffering is over; we will meet her some sweet day after ra while if we'll only live as she did, be prepared to meet God.

We weep for her, no tenderer wife
E'er mads man's fireside bright,
No more devoted mother's love
E'er kept home altar fires alight.

And she is with the angel host,
With sinless heart and stainless hand
Waiting to see us over yonder
In that bright and happy land.

To know her was to love her,
Our little pal we loved so dear,
Heaven seemed away up yonder
But now it seems so near.

Through all the pain at times she smiled—
A smile of heavenly birth,
And when the angels called her home
She smiled farewell to earth.

Her heart was bound with ours in love
Good works here to maintain,
And she has gone to God we know
Forever there to reign.

But why should we lament our fate
Since God has thought it best
To take her soul from hence away
To its eternal rest.

And since it is so let us not grieve,
Our Savior has sent his rod;
Let not our will but His be done,
We know there is our God.

SEVEN-YEAR FIGHT IN COURTS CLOSED BY CLEMENCY GRANT

60-YEAR-OLD WOMAN SOCIAL WORKER CONVICTED VIOLATION SYNDICALISM LAW

By Associated Press.

Sacramento, Cal., June 21.—A seven-year fight in the courts over the conviction of Miss Charlotte Anita Whitney, prominent Oakland social worker, on a charge of violating the California criminal syndicalism law, came to an end last night when Governor C. C. Young issued an unconditional pardon to the 60-year-old defendant.

The pardon frees Miss Whitney of the stigma of a convict and spares her from a one to 14-year sentence in San Quentin prison, which has been the object of much of her welfare work.

Executive clemency was requested by hundreds of people in all walks of life after the United States Supreme Court had twice considered the case and upheld both the constitutionality of the law and Miss Whitney's conviction.

Miss Whitney gave up the fight after the Supreme Court had pronounced its last word. She maintained that to have asked a pardon for herself would have been a tacit admission of guilt.

She was arrested in Oakland in November, 1919, after delivering a speech in defense of John McHugo, accused I. W. W. leader. Her arrest came after she had defied city authorities by passing the [illegible]

In explaining his reasons for the pardon, Governor Young maintained that Miss Whitney could not be classed as a "criminal."

History of Case Involved in Pardon

By Associated Press.

Washington, June 21.—When first assailed by Charlotte Anita Whitney, the California criminal syndicalism law was alleged to be an unconstitutional restraint upon the rights of free assembly and free speech.

After the Supreme Court had dismissed the suit for want of jurisdiction and had reinstated it upon a showing that constitutional questions had been presented while the case was before the State courts, counsel for Miss Whitney confined their attack to the application of the law to her particular acts. The State asserted this question had been determined by the trial court.

It was asserted in Miss Whitney's defense that she had not advocated the overthrow of the present form of government by the use of force, but had participated in a meeting of radicals for the purpose of exercising her influence to restrain them from resorting to unlawful means.

The State replied that while Miss Whitney's resolutions had been voted down in the Oakland convention at which the California communist labor party was organized, she had remained active in its affairs after the party had endorsed the Third Internationale at Moscow, and had congratulated the I. W. W.'s upon their political activities. It insisted that the attack was upon the law itself and that it had been directed and sustained by the Communist Labor Party and not by Miss Whitney.

Counsel for Miss Whitney contended that it was a violation of her constitutional rights to attempt to punish her for attending meetings of the party and that the guarantee of freedom of speech and the right of assembly rendered her immune from arrest until she had been guilty of an overt act to use force to change the present form of government. There could be no doubt, the State asserted, that Miss Whitney was fully conscious of the purposes of the Communist Labor Party, and it was not necessary to wait until she had actually joined in a mob outbreak or other acts of violence. In support of its position the State charged she had been a radical socialist, and had participated in the selection of delegates to the Chicago meeting at which the National Communist Labor Party was organized.

Fully aware that the California branch would align itself with the national party, the State said, she had heartily participated in the Oakland convention, not as a mere spectator, but as an active member. She remained identified with the organization, it said, after it had voted to use force to accomplish the release of political prisoners, and had determined its adherence to bolshevism.

The law was criticized by counsel for Miss Whitney as aimed against those who advocated a change in existing institutions, and as not being restricted in its application to those who proposed to use force to bring about political and economic changes. It did not prohibit, is was claimed, the use of violent means to preserve present institutions.

Using the Ku Klux Klan and the I. W. W.'s to illustrate the argument, it was contended that the California law would not operate against the use of force by the former but would against the latter.

It was denied by her counsel that MissMiss Whitney carried an I. W. W. card, and it was insisted that her "casual" meetings with that organization were prior to the passage of the criminal syndicalism law. It was further asserted that while she had been a socialist she had never been a communist, and that the action of the Oakland convention had been taken over her protest. Her criminal liability, it was contended must be measured by her acts and not by some indefinite apprehension of her intent.

Sedition and treason had caused the enactment of the law, the State declared, a setting its right to protect itself against criminal syndicalism.

NEGRO ARRESTED HERE HAD STOLEN MISS MOODY'S CAR

RETURNED TO WILLIAMSON COUNTY TO ANSWER THREE CHARGES THERE

The negro, Frank Johnson, arrested here late Saturday by Officers Nutt and Tickle and who featured in an exciting chase later when he made a dash from the office of Chief of Police Will S. Knight, was returned to Williamson county by City Marshal H. J. Lindsey, charged with the theft of two automobiles and the burglary of a tailor shop. One auto was stolen in Taylor and the other in Granger. The tailor shop was robbed in Granger.

It develops that the car stolen at Taylor was the property of Miss Mary Moody, sister of Governor Dan Moody. The car, a Ford coupe, was taken from the street at the side of Miss Moody's home on the night of Wednesday, June 8th. Johnson went to San Antonio and on his return north from that city was arrested at Marion, Guadalupe county, on a charge of operating a car with one one license plate. A farmer was induced to go on the negro's bond and Miss Moody's car was left with the farmer there as security.

Going on to New Braunfels the negro stole a doctor's prescription case from his car and it was there he secured the case of drugs he had in his possession when arrested here. He went from New Braunfels to Granger and stole another car, a Ford touring, and burglarized a tailor shop there on the night of Thursday, June 16th. He came to Corsicana, arriving shortly after noon on Friday, June 17th, and was arrested on Saturday, June 18th and the car, clothing and other articles, including two watches, recovered.

The negro admitted to Chief Knight that he was an ex-convict, having been sentenced to two years for the theft of an automobile at Waco. He stole the car on January 29, 1926, and was sentenced on February 22, 1926. He stated that he was released from the prison after serving fifteen months.

MEN WORKING IN STATE PRISON MINE OVERPOWER GUARDS

By Associated Press.

Lansing, Kans., une 21.—Three hundred and twenty-eight prisoners in the State penitentiary mine here mutinied today, overpowered fourteen guards and blocked the cages; it was announced from the warden's office this afternoon.

The prisoners refuse to answer the telephones and are thought to be formulating demands upon the warden.

The prisoners placed heavy timbers beneath and above the mine cages so they could not be moved from the top.

A mutinous spirit has been prevalent at the prison since Sunday it is said, when the prisoners demanded that they be allowed to have cigarettes and cigarette papers sent to them from outside.

Last night prisoners caused a slight disturbance in one of the cell houses, the warden's secretary said.

The mine "hide out" is quite similar to one staged in July, 1926, when prisoners made several demands upon Warden W. H. Mackey. The demands were not granted and the convicts surrendered after 36 hours in the mine.

Some of the Accomplishments of the Federal Land Bank of Houston for the Farmers of Texas in Ten Years—

1. Loaned to 55,000 Texas farmers $160,000,000.
2. Reduced interest rates from 8 and 10 per cent on first farm mortgages to 5 and 5 1-2 per cent.
3. Interest savings by borrowers now approximately $4,000,000 per annum.
4. Introduced the long-term loan into Texas and made it popular.
5. Gave easy repayment terms over a series of years, making it possible for the farmer to pay off his loan from his earnings and eliminating the heavy cost burden of frequent renewal and extension.
6. Loan not called, so long as installments are paid, removing the fear of foreclosure.
7. Enabled 45,000 farmers to take up and pay off old mortgages which did not have such favorable terms.
8. Made it possible for thousands of other farmers and ranchmen to purchase farms or additional land, to pay for necessary improvements and thereby increase their returns or improve their standard of living.
9. Organized 350 National Farm Loan Associations, or an average of more than one to each county in the State.
10. Dividends passed on to the borrowers by the Associations have in many Associations reduced the net interest rate paid by them.
11. Members through their Associations have not only repaid the United States Treasury the $750,000 advanced by it so the Bank could commence business, but they now own capital stock and surplus amounting to $9,570,000. The Associations themselves, have built up a surplus of $700,000.
12. Proved that co-operative long-term farm credit based upon conservative first farm mortgages in this country is not only feasible but a marked success.

The Corsicana National Farm Loan Association has loaned $3,023,850.00 to 730 borrowers at a saving of $75,000.00 in interest a year during the life of the loan. In other words, our borrowers are paying $75,000.00 a year less interest than they were paying before they changed their loans to this association.

AMERICAN CHIEF DELEGATE CONFERS WITH JAPANESE

TECHNICIANS ARE ALSO MEETING TO GET GENERAL VIEWS OF EXPERTS

By Associated Press.

Geneva, June 22.—Hugh S. Gibson chief American delegate, held a private conversation with Admiral Viscount Saito and Viscount Ishii of Japan today on the problems raised by the big divergencies between the American, British and Japane naval limitations projects.

W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the British Admiralty, found himself unable to attend this first private meeting because of a session of the Dominion delegates, but he was to see Mr. Gibson during the afternoon and have a general talk.

The Japanese delegates told Mr. Gibson that it was difficult to discuss limitation of auxiliary naval vessels in terms of ratio, but assured him that Japan earnestly desired to reach an agreement and believed one could be achieved if all the factors in the situations of the various nations were taken into consideration.

Denial Is Made.

After the meeting, the leaders denied a report that Viscount Saito had flatly notified the American delegate that Japan was unable to accept the 5-5-3 ratio for auxiliaries.

While the leaders were tackling the broad political aspects of American, British and Japanese proposals, the naval experts of the three delegations met to begin a technical study of the three plans in order to ascertain the exact purport of various phrases in them.

Rear Admiral Frank H. Scoffield, the chief of the three American experts, is director of the War Plans Division of the navy department, while Captain Adolphus Andrews is commander of the submarine base at New London, Conn.

At the conclusion of the technicans' meeting, a communique was issued saying:

"The technical committee established Pune 21 by resolution of the executive committee of the conference met today to exchange views with a view to elucidating in a more detailed manner the special proposals."

British Delegates Confer.

The presentatives of the British Dominions at their meeting with Mr. Bridgeman discussed the general British attitude in light of the plans submitted to the conference. It is understood that Australia and New Zealand are especially anxious that nothing be done here to weaken the growing strength of the Singapore naval base. Australia now is building two 10,000 ton cruisers, which can be repaired in Sydney harbor, but in view of her remoteness from the mother country, she desires maintenance of Singapore as a protective base of the Australian fleet.

Admiral Saito told the Associated Press yesterday that he had no intention of raising the Singapore question and Admiral Jellicoe has assured the press that the question of the naval bases is not on the agenda of the present conference.

State Department Issues Statement

By Associated Press.

Washington, June 22.—The State Department exerted itself today to make clear that the American proposals presented at the Geneva arms conference represented the best thought of the administration at this time, and that barring the usual concessions of compromise on detail, the plan should be maintained as the basis for any final agreement.

London Paper Scores U. S. Plan

By Associated Press.

London, June 22.—The proposals of the United States at the Geneva naval limitation conference are interpreted by the Morning Post as aimed at equalizing the American and British navies while keeping the Japanese inferior to either.

"We cannot imagine," it declares "upon what grounds the United States bases such an illogical proposal, as there can be no equality between two nations whose requirements are wholly different."
